CORONATION OF POPE PIUS X. A GLITTERING SPECTACLE; 70,000 PERSONS' MAD RUSH

Thousands Stand for Hours Waiting for Doors to Open—Many Women Fainted in the Crush.

PONTIFF STANDS ORDEAL, BUT IS VISIBLY WEAKENED

Upon the Completion of the Ceremony the Great Building Was Filled With Acclamations and Peals of Bells Filled the Air.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

Rome, Aug. 9.—The ceremony of the coronation of Pope Pius X. took place today in the basilica of St. Peter's in the presence of the princes and high dignitaries of the church, diplomats and Roman nobles, and with all the solemnity and splendor associated with this, the most magnificent rite in the Roman Catholic church.

As Cardinal Macchi, the dean of the cardinal-deacons, placed the triple crown on the head of the venerable pontiff, the throng of 70,000 persons gathered within the cathedral burst into unrestrained acclamations, the choir intoned a hymn of triumph and the bells of Rome rang out a joyful peal.

It is 57 years since the Romans and Europe assisted at such a function as was held in St. Peter's today. The great basilica, popularly supposed never to have been quite full, was overflowing with humanity. The papal throne, a bewildering mixture of gold, red and silver, was erected in front of the high altar. As, contrary to custom on these ceremonious occasions, there were no galleries the basilica bore more of its normal aspect. On the altar, which was dressed in white, stood the famous silver gilt candlesticks and a magnificent crucifix. All the available standing space within the cathedral was divided into sections by wooden barriers, which, to a certain extent, kept the vast crowd in order.

Fog Followed by Great Heat.

In the early hours after sunrise a thick fog hung over Rome, and one bank of the Tiber could not be seen from the other, while from the St. Angelo bridge one seemed to look into a fathomless abyss instead of into the river. The effect was especially magnificent on entering the piazza of St. Peter's. At times Michael Angelo's great dome disappeared from view, while at others it appeared through the flowing golden mist. As the morning wore on the fog disappeared and the sun shone with all its southern intensity until it became unbearably hot, and the stones, columns and statues seemed to radiate the heat on the thousands waiting to enter the church. At 6 a. m. the ringing of bells announced the imminent opening of the doors, and a commotion at once began among the crowd. But 10 minutes had to elapse before the doors were opened and each seemed a century to the waiting crowd, which for hours already had been standing before the closed portals. The police and Italian soldiers had a difficult task to maintain order, as the crushing and fatigue had begun to tell on the patience of the people.

Crush at Doors Terrifying.

When the doors were opened the inrush was terrific; many who started from the bottom of the steps outside were lifted off their feet and carried into the cathedral. It was a great human torrent let loose, thousands of people rushing, crushing and squeezing amid screams, protests, gesticulation and cries for help. But once in the whirlpool there was no escape and the compactness of the crowd proved to be the safety of those caught in it. Women fainted in comparatively large numbers, and even men were overcome by the heat, but no serious accidents were reported. Fortunately there were very few children present. After their entrance the people had further long hours of waiting and it is computed that the majority were on their feet altogether 10 hours, five before the ceremony and another five hours while it lasted.

Those who had received special invitations, including the high ecclesiastics who were not participating in the procession the diplomats and the Roman aristocracy, had a reserved entrance through the sacristy of St. Peters. Prince Massimo arrived, accompanied by his daughter-in-law, Princess Beatrice, the daughter of Don Carlos, and they were given prominent seats. Duke Robert of Parma was the only other member of a royal family to attend. Among the aristocracy there was a great mixture of those Roman nobles who remain faithful to the papacy and those adhering to the quirinal. Sir Thomas Esmonde, representing the Irish parliamentary party, was received by two knights of the cape and sword, one F. McNutt, an American and conducted to the diplomatic inclosure.

The Pope Rose Early.

Inside the vatican palace there was no less movement and bustle as the papal procession, composed of about 500 persons all of whom had gathered early in the apostolic palace, was formed. The pope seemed to be the only tranquil one amongst them all. He rose unusually early and took a stroll in the vatican garden. Then he allowed himself to be dressed by the cardinals. He evinced no nervousness and even said jokingly to the master of ceremonies, who the other day suggested that he should use the plural form in speaking of himself, "we feel very well this morning, but we may be different on returning from our coronation."

Just before entering the sedia gestatoria, he asked for his spectacles and when the master of ceremonies discreetly hinted that his holiness would look better without them he said: "I have no desire to appear what I am not," and in fact he wore them during the entire ceremony.

The procession was a long time in getting under way, but afterward as it moved through the magnificent halls and corridors of the vatican it recalled former days, when all was color and picturesqueness within the palace.

Wore Vestments Without Effort.

The central figure in the long cortege was Pius X., borne in the sedia gestatoria. His heavy white robes and the red and gold mitre were worn without an effort, making a vivid contrast to those memorable occasions when Pope Leo XIII. wore them, for Leo seemed always unable to support their weight. Over the pontiff's head a canopy was held by eight men, while the historic ostrich feather fans, with peacock tips, gave a touch of barbaric splendor to western eyes.

Surrounding Pope Pius were the noble guard in new red uniforms and gleaming helmets and carrying drawn swords, while in front marched the cardinals, a gorgeous bit of color with many handsome faces among them, the cardinal-bishops in their capes, the cardinal-priests wearing chasubles, and the cardinal-deacons in their delmatics. Another figure, which evoked murmurs of admiration and craning of necks was the chaplain in his crimson cope, proudly bearing the cushion on which reposed the famous triple crown, so soon to rest on the head of Pius. He was accompanied by the pontifical jeweler and by a special guard, composed of Swiss, and was followed by the choir of the Sistine chapel, in white, which sang as it went along.

Before leaving the vatican the pope went to the Sistine chapel to worship before the sacrament exposed therein, and thence passed through the Sala regia, and the constantine staircase into the portico of the basilica. He there seated himself on a throne erected directly before the holy door and with seats around for the members of the sacred college, the chapter of St. Peter's and the papal court. At the right of the throne stood Prince Orsini, the assistant to the papal throne, who withdrew his recent resignation of the post in order to participate at the function. Immediately beside the pope were the major domo, Mgr. Cagiano; the master of thechamber, Mgr. Bisleti; the master of ceremonies, Mgr. Riggi, and Doctor Lapponi. The pontiff was exceedingly pale, but composed.

Rampolla Presented Well Wishes.

The low ceiling sent back an exquisite echo of the "Tues Petrus," sang by the Sistine choir, whose voices were heard outside in the piazza of St. Peter's. Cardinal Rampolla advanced with dignity,

TWO WILY BRITISH COPS CAUGHT OUR MR. CHOATE

Duchess of Marlborough, the American Ambassador, His Wife and Daughter Arrested for Breaking Motor Speed Limit.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

London, Aug. 9.—For driving an automobile beyond the legal speed of 12 miles an hour, the duchess of Marlborough has been summoned to appear in court next Friday. The duchess was driving from Broughton castle to Blenheim castle. With her was Ambassador Choate, wife and daughter, who are guests at Blenheim. Two constables witnessed the duchess scorching between Bambury and Teddington, so it is likely she may have to pay a fine of £5.

For a year past the chief occupation of the rural police has been setting traps for motorists. They measure a stretch of road and station men behind the hedges at the start and finish with stop watches to time the speed. The motorists are convicted on police testimony and sentenced to a fine of £5 to £10.

The duchess is not the only distinguished person arrested by the rural police recently. Balfour has been summoned four times. Lipton, while driving Gens. Corbin and Young in the early spring, was summoned. Within a fortnight Lord Ilchester, Baron de Forest, Ernest Cunard and other eminent persons have been fined. Recently Lord Onslow denounced the police, and stated that their chief occupation apparently consisted in setting traps for motorists.

TWO SHOTS ARE FIRED AT PREMIER OF FRANCE

Attempt Made to Assassinate M. Combes by an Alleged Anarchist, Who Is Overpowered in Street of Marseilles.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

Marseilles, Aug. 9.—As Premier Combes was returning this afternoon to the prefecture from a banquet given by the Friendly Society of Teachers, at which M. Pelletan, minister of marine, and Henri Brisson, deputy for Marseilles, and a number of senators and deputies were present, two pistol shots were fired at the carriage in which Combes was riding. The premier was untouched and none of those accompanying him was hurt.

The attempt upon the life of the president of the ministry caused great excitement, and the crowd pointed out to the police, as the author of the attempt, a man dressed in fishermen's clothes. His companion drew a knife, but the police quickly disarmed him.

The police had much difficulty in protecting the man who had fired the shots from the crowd. He struggled desperately, but was soon overcome, handcuffed and taken to the prefecture, where M. Combes had already arrived.

The first interrogation of the prisoner took place in the presence of the premier. The man said his name was San Vaire Picolo. He spoke very bad French, with a strong Italian accent. He denied that he had fired the shots, but when searched a revolver was found with two chambers which had been recently fired.

It is believed that Picolo and his companion, who had effected his escape during the confusion, are both dangerous anarchists. The police are aware of the presence in Marseilles of a number of other anarchists.

The following official version of the attack upon Premier Combes has been issued:

As the premier's carriage was passing the corner of Avenue Capellete and Rue Saint Flol, five men began throwing tomatoes. Only one of the missiles reached the carriage, striking the coachman in the eye. The detectives, aided by the local police, started in pursuit of the men, who fled. Being closely pressed and seeing themselves about to be overtaken the men drew knives and revolvers and engaged in a struggle with the police, who fired, seriously wounding three of them. One of those arrested succeeded in passing his revolver to an accomplice. Another was arrested a few minutes later. One of them named Picolo has already undergone five previous arrests.

CAPTIVES WERE BURNED ALIVE

Frenzied Insurgents in Monastir Participate in a Savage Butchery.

MUSSULMEN ARE TERRORIZED

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

Constantinople, Aug. 9.—Late dispatches from Hilmi Pacha, inspector general of the reform movement, announce that insurgents in large numbers in the district of Clisuri, vilayet of Monastir, attacked the village of Djivarek, near Kastoria, and massacred the inhabitants, including women and children, and then furiously attacked neighboring villages, taking many captives, some of whom were burned alive.

Some Greek peasants were also killed in one of the Kazus of the vilayet of Monastir, and in the vilayet of Okhrida insurgents likewise attacked some Mussulman villages. They displayed rage and ferocity and the Mussulman inhabitants were greatly terrorized. The government is taking every measure possible to suppress the rising. Eight more battalions have been ordered to the vilayet of Monastir. M. Maurocordato, the Greek minister, has made representations to the porte on behalf of the Greek subjects.

M. Rostkovski, the Russian consul at Monastir, it turns out, was murdered Saturday morning by a Zaptie (a member of the Turkish police), who was on duty outside the consulate. The assassin was arrested. Said Pacha, the grand vizier, and Tewfik Pacha, minister of foreign affairs, called on the Russian ambassador, M. Zinovief and expressed the government's deep regret over the occurrence.

DUEL OF TWO NOBLEMEN MAY END IN DEATH OF ONE

Mortal Wound Received by Man Who Tried to Shield His Sister from Abuse.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

DRESDEN, Aug. 9.—The "400" of the city is in a state of excitement caused by a duel between two of its most fashionable members, Count von Witz and his brother-in-law, Baron von Friesen. It is claimed that Baron von Friesen, whose wife is a sister of the count, had abused and ill-treated her in the most cruel manner, and for this had received a sound thrashing at the hands of Count von Carlo Witz, who had been told by one of the servants of the baron of the sufferings of his sister.

Baron von Friesen then challenged Count von Carlo to a duel, which took place yesterday, and in which the count was seriously wounded. He is now in a critical condition and his life is despaired of. As both men are closely connected with the royal Saxon as well as the imperial courts at Berlin the affair has caused an unusual stir.

Count von Carlo Witz, who owns large estates near this city, is royal Prussian chamberlain and a lieutenant in the Saxon guard. He is 31 years old and a great favorite with the kaiser. Baron Friesen is five years older than the count.

CRITICISM BY CLUBMEN LEADS LANGLEY TO MOVE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—(Special.)—Driven out from his quarters at Quantico club, Widewater, Va., by the criticisms of Truxton Beale and other members of the club, who took exceptions to what they declared was a monopoly of the club house, Prof. Langley has directed that his chief assistant, Manly, in charge of the flying machine experiments, and the force under his command, shall move to Clifton Beach, eight miles below Widewater.

GERMAN CABINET IS ABOUT TO FALL

Kaiser Is Expected to Take the Aggressive on Return from Norway.

ALL ARE IN SHAKY PLACES

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

Berlin, Aug. 9.—The political quiet which has lasted here ever since the kaiser left for Norway is now broken by the repeated rumors that the floods in Silesia will cause the resignation of several members of the cabinet. A council of state will take place as soon as the kaiser returns, and in political circles everyone knows what this sudden council means.

It is no longer a secret that the Prussian minister of interior, Count Von Hammerstein will have to resign on account of his lack of eyesight in allowing it to be published in official papers that the state could do nothing for the sufferers in Silesia who would have to rely on public charity. It may be a consolation to Count von Hammerstein that he will not be the only member to go.

It looks indeed very much as if the whole cabinet might fall. Secretary of War von Gosseler has long ago been marked for retirement and his place will be taken by Lieut.-Gen. von Einem, while Secretary of Agriculture von Podvielski, some time ago announced that he would disappear, "as soon as the hay was all in." Secretary of Justice Schonstedt is more than 70 years old and has asked the kaiser to be allowed to resign and the position of Secretary of Education Studt has long been considered very shaky.

The kaiser will return from his trip on Wednesday and will go to Berlin when he will decide the fate. He will probably then surrender himself with young and active men.

HERRICK ORDERS AUTO.

Ohio's Gubernatorial Candidate Will Use It During His Campaign.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—Mayor Johnson is not to be alone as an automobile campaigner. Yesterday Colonel Myron T. Herrick, the Republican candidate for governor, ordered a $3,000 touring car. It will be of a design similar to Johnson's "Red Devil," and will be used in the colonel's campaign this fall.

The citizens of Ohio will thus have the unprecedented opportunity of seeing two gubernatorial candidates chasing each other over hills and dales and over cross roads in sporting machines capable of going from 30 to 40 miles an hour. The chase for votes under these circumstances promises to be keenly exciting, as well as spectacular.

INJURED IN A RUNAWAY.

Four Young Men Thrown from a Trap While Driving on Sewickley Heights.

J. C. and J. R. Macon, David Stewart and Edward Gilmore, four well known young men of Sewickley, were injured in a runaway while driving a trap on Sewickley Heights, at 7:45 o'clock last night. While descending a steep hill the holdback strap in the harness broke and the horse, taking fright, dashed down the road. The Macon brothers were thrown to the ground and the horse continued its mad race for half a mile, finally overturning the trap and hurling Stewart and Gilmore over an embankment.

L. R. Macon was rendered unconscious by the fall and remained in that condition over an hour. None of the men was seriously hurt. The rig was demolished.

CANTRELL HAS TOLD TRUTH

Police Rapidly Corroborate Terrible Deeds of Murderous Gang.

ARRESTS TO FOLLOW

Plenty of Witnesses Are to Be Found for the Numerous Shocking Crimes.

ALSO OPERATED IN CHICAGO

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 9.—The police are searching the city in every negro locality for the men charged with murder by Rufus Cantrell, in the confession made public yesterday. At the same time detectives are unearthing additional details that corroborate his statement and point to further startling developments within the next few days.

It is expected by tomorrow sufficient evidence will be procured to warrant the arrest of at least two prominent physicians, both of whom are officers of medical colleges. It now develops that, fearful lest information should leak out that would interfere with the prosecution of the detectives' hunt for the men implicated by Cantrell's confession, the police, with the assistance of the management of the Indiana reformatory, where Cantrell is now a prisoner, permitted only that part of the confession to be made public which in general terms recited the truth. The confession giving all the details and data is even a more startling document.

It recites murder after murder in a cold-blooded unfeeling manner, giving names of witnesses, details of corroborative evidence and a complete list of those implicated in teh crimes. Among the latter are a wealthy farmer of Hamilton county who now is under indictment for grave robbery. Others are physicians of Indianapolis.

Details of Revolting Murder.

The police have already been able to collect a startling array of evidence in the case of the mysterious disappearance of Carrie Salvage, three years ago. The woman was a member of one of the city's best known families. She was an inmate of a private sanitarium. From this institution she was kidnaped in broad daylight on Sunday by Gardeld Buckner, Cantrell and William McElroy, all colored, lodged for a time in a physician's barn and later taken to the abandoned basement of an old medical college and there held a prisoner.

The most revolting details of her treatment are withheld by the police. The woman was not of sound mind. She escaped on one occasion from her captors, but enjoyed only a short respite of freedom when she was recaptured and dragged to the basement jail. She was seen on this occasion of her escape. This witness had already been an eye-witness to a brutal murder. When Miss Salvage's body was next seen by this witness it was deposited in a sack in the cellar of a North street house, where Cantrell made his rendezvous. The throat was cut from ear to ear. This witness and a number of others saw Cantrell and his associates frequently casting disinfecting fluids about the cellar.

Not only was Cantrell a witness to the murder of Patrolman Watterson, seven years ago, but he was also a party in the crime. This was his first murder.

Cantrell's confession has been supplemented by a confession by Samuel Martin, his closest associate, who is also an inmate of the reformatory, sentenced for grave robbery. Martin declares that the organization was composed of murderers, with Cantrell as leader. He says it was known as the "Sign of the Cross." The name came from the manner in which the members of the organization signed their names to letters of warning arranging the details of murders.

Confession Corroborated.

Martin likewise verifies Cantrell's statement concerning the murder of Walter Johnson, the Pennsylvanian; Carrie Salvage, "Jim" Handy, Jessie Edward, Doc Lung, a Chinaman; three infants and William Gray. The police also have found a woman and a man; both of them, together with another woman, recite harrowing details of the efforts made by Cantrell, operating boldly with a physician, to murder them. Eye witnesses of several murders have been found, and an eye witness to at least two other crimes has also been located. It now develops that these witnesses feared Cantrell and the members of the "Sign of the Cross" so heartily that they dared not inform upon the murderers.

The detectives have found that the kidnaping of Miss Salvage, apparently without motive, was proposed to the ghoul murderers by a physician. Professional jealousy, aroused by the success of the United States hospital and the decline of a rival institution, is said to have been the motive. The physician instigating the abduction was connected with the rival hospital. He did not contemplate Miss Salvage's murder, but merely desired to have her escape from custody in the hope that the sensation that would follow would result in the decline of the United States and the subsequent success of his own hospital.

Cantrell and other members of the "Sign of the Cross" also operated in Chicago, where under various aliases, they are now wanted for murder. The police have been able to obtain the names of nearly a dozen members of the "Sign of the Cross." These men will be apprehended as fast as they can be located.

The confession of Cantrell was referred to the police department today, and it was decided to lay it before the grand jury at once.

LEADERS CAST EYES AT MILES

Democrats Sizing Him Up for Second Place on National Ticket.

GORMAN'S HAND SEEN

Politics Supposed to Figure in the Pilgrimage to San Francisco.

THE GENERAL HAS ASPIRATIONS

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau.
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, Aug. 9.

For vice president of the United states, Lieut-Gen. Nelson A. Miles.

This is the tail of a national ticket which is very attractive to many Democratic politicians. They think they will greatly strengthen their position if they can arrange a combination in which Gen. Miles will appear as the second man on the ticket. It is suspected that the fine hand of Senator Gorman is behind the movement which started in Maryland to make him commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Democratic papers all over the country have, by common consent, begun to make it appear that Gen. Miles has been much abused by the McKinley and Roosevelt administration. The old soldier will probably have a reception at the national encampment of the G. A. R. at San Francisco, which will make his availability as a vice presidential candidate appear even more tempting to the Democrats.

Personally Gen. Miles believes he is presidential and not vice presidential timber. He thought seriously of running for president in 1900, and even went so far as to ask President Roosevelt, then governor of the state of New York, to enter into a combination with him to defeat McKinley, and Roosevelt was invited to take second place.

Gen. Miles' feud with the McKinley administration, which feud included first Mr. McKinley, Secretary of War Alger and Adjt.-Gen. Corbin, and later Secretary of War Root, was at that time in full swing. When Roosevelt succeeded to the presidency the feud fell on his shoulders. Gen. Miles got along well with none of his civilian superiors, and has always felt that the great American public was behind him, and that if he could get a nomination for president he could beat any of his opponents on any ticket.

The leading Democratic politicians are not disposed to let Miles lead the fight for them, as Hancock did in 1880. Too many of them want the first place for themselves. There are Bryan, Hill, Gorman, Tom Johnson and Olney. Then there are Cleveland, Gray and Parker in the hands of their own states, and of their friends. Gen. Miles, with 43 years of army service, has lost his identity as the favorite son of any state, and nothing short of a great spontaneous movement could get him any presidential nomination.

FRANK A. PARKER.

OLD SORE RANKLES.

Confederate Rejoices at Miles' Retirement Because He Shackled Davis.

ATLANTA, GA., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—When the news of the retirement of Gen. Miles was published yesterday Benjamin M. Blackburn, secretary of the executive department, brought out some 50 to 75 confederate flags and placed them around the state capitol. Several pictures of prominent confederate generals were also posted in different parts of the capitol.

Blackburn loses no occasion to express his hatred of Gen. Miles for having put shackles on President Jeff Davis. He decorated the capitol with confederate flags, he said, as an expression of his joy that Gen. Miles had been retired and was no longer officially connected with the army. His action created considerable comment, but none of an unfavorable nature.

Oriental Rugs Burned.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Fire in the Century building in Union square today destroyed $50,000 worth of oriental rugs in the establishment of H. S. Travahanjian and caused minor damage to other occupants of the building.

PLAN TO ANNEX WILKINSBURG

Latest Wrinkle in Big Suburb's Blue Law Crusade.

PETITIONS READY

Druggists' Committee Hopes to Check Campaign of Sabbatarian Reformers.

SUNDAY SODA IS STILL SOLD

Smarting under the sting of the blue law crusade, residents of Wilkinsburg who see no harm in Sunday soda water will appeal for annexation to the city. Literature on the subject has been compiled for immediate distribution, and before the week is over 200 petitions will be circulated among the voters of the borough.

The committee of five which has upheld the drugists' end in fighting the blue laws, is acting as sponsor for the annexation movement. Several days ago S. W. Covell, one of the leading opponents to the Sabbatarians, headed a committee of Wilkinsburgers who called upon Mayor Hays and discussed preliminary plans for the linking of the two municipalities. Further conferences will be held and the annexationists feel certain that they will get the requisite number of voters to sign the petitions.

Kept Project Quiet.

Such is the strained situation in the big suburb as a result of the persistent prosecution of the druggists who sell soda water and cigars seven days in the week. An effort was being made to maintain silence regarding the plans which were formulated looking toward annexation, and it was thought that enough signatures could be obtained in a single day to satisfy the court that a legal number of citizens desired to enter the city. For more than a fortnight a committee has been at work preparing the petitions and printing anti-blue law literature.

C. S. LONGACRE.
The Evangelist Who Will Discuss the Blue Laws.

With the prospect of immediate annexation it is thought that the crusade will come to a sudden end. Two months ago there were probably not 100 people in the borough who were favorable to joining the big municipality, but the closing of the small shops and drug stores has caused two bitter factions to spring up, and those who are friendly to the Sunday open-door are almost a unit in their interest in behalf of annexation.

To See Mayor Again.

Mr. Covell last night refused to state who had accompanied him in his visit to Mayor Hays' office. He said they had talked at some length on the projected plans and that they would return for a later conference with Pittsburgh's chief executive.

"There isn't any doubt as to the probable success in securing signers to the petitions," said Mr. Covell last night. "We have the names of 198 willing workers who have promised to take around the papers. Several men will make a canvass of the Westinghouse works and,

SAYS SHAKESPEARE WAS CAST INTO RIVER THAMES

St. Louis Scientist Has New Baconian Cipher Which Tells That Ben Jonson Helped Exhume the Body.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 9.—According to a cipher discovered by Dr. W. Hutson Ford of St. Louis, in the writings credited to William Shakespeare, not only were the Shakespearean plays and sonnets the work of Lord Francis Bacon, but in them lies indisputable proof that Bacon in his closing days bitterly resented the injustice being done to him and spoke disparagingly of the "Sot" and "Ignoble" Shakespeare.

Moreover, Dr. Ford claims to be able to prove that in the famous inscription on Shakespeare's gravestone there is in cipher writing a confession that Bacon, assisted by Ben Jonson, exhumed the body of Shakespeare and cast it into the river Thames and substituted in its place in the grave a small casket containing proofs of Bacon's authorship of the plays including the manuscripts of some of his latest and best works and the key to the hidden cipher in the works of Shakespeare.

Dr. Ford, who is an author and a scientific investigator of some renown, has been working on his theory of the Baconian authorship and cipher for many years. He will soon publish a book containing an exposition of this theory, together with many anagrams from the text of Shakespearean plays and his translations. His reading of the famous curse inscription is as follows:

O ashe, dear friend, for the dead sot. I tel, FR. Bacon Dugg: he rose. See, Sir, haste, move the stones. Siphers and best MS rest beneath them. Bacon blest u

Dr. Ford declares that his discoveries will be proven and a great wrong be righted if the grave of Shakespeare be opened, for he firmly believes that there may be found therein the indisputable proofs of Bacon's authorship. The cipher writing discovered and solved by Dr. Ford has nothing to do with ciphers which engaged the attention of Ignatius Donnelly, Miss Delia Bacon, Elizabeth Wells Gallup and others.

in a few hours, the papers can be filled with the signatures of some of the borough's most thrifty citizens. We are waiting for one member of the committee to return from his vacation journey. When he arrives the work will be commenced and all details will be carried out without delay."

The blue laws had little effect in closing the soda fountains yesterday. The stores of W. L. Smith, J. C. Pauley and S. W. Covell were open throughout the day and did an immense trade in ice cream and the fizzing beverage.

Detectives at Work.

In the meantime the committee of five was busy. Three private detectives scouted through the town from dawn until midnight collecting evidence to be used in prosecuting other trades that are operated on Sunday. A sharp lookout was kept for unwary automobilists who came into the forbidding town, and the numbers of all street cars operated in Wilkinsburg by the Pittsburgh Railways Company were taken.

When the town clock struck 12, informations were made against all dealers who had sold soda water. The druggists said they were willing to pay the $25 fine and still would have a profit that would justify them in keeping open indefinitely. One druggist sold over $40 worth of cigars.

The scheme to sell two quinine pills for 10 cents and give a glass of ice cream soda on the side was not tried. At W. L. Smith's establishment a "delicious lunch for 10 cents" was advertised by placards in the show window. The "lunch" consisted of two ginger snaps and any flavor of ice cream soda that was desired. Mr. Smith said he was ready to keep up the fight till doomsday if necessary.

Will Open a Restaurant.

"If it comes to the worst," said another druggist, "I will take out a restaurant keeper's license. I will have a regular menu card printed. If patrons want a full meal I will have it served from a neighboring restaurant. If they want ice cream soda I will serve it from the fountain. I'm here to sell soda water, and will not back down for any spasm of reform paraded with old musty laws that were used to keep the Quakers from doing harm."

The druggists were inclined to laugh at every move recently made by the church committee of 12. When asked how they looked upon the auditor general's demand for the remitted fines, they replied:

"Very well; we're willing to pay the fines, but we want to deny that any point has been gained over us. We're in this fight to the finish."

Evangelist G. S. Longacre tonight will begin a series of religious Gospel meetings in a tent pitched in Wallace avenue, Wilkinsburg, having chosen the timely topic, "The Blue Laws: Why They Should Be Repealed."

The fines remitted by magistrates in the Wilkinsburg cases will aggregate $2,000. Burgess John A. Keys said last night that he had not remitted any fines. He explained that he had fined S. W. Covell and A. E. Wright, a confectioner, the first cases tried before him in the present crusade, and that he had imposed a fine of $25 on each of them. A few days later the druggists and church committee came to an agreement whereby the druggists were to close. In this agreement was the condition that all suits be dropped and fines remitted. As the druggists did not keep their agreement, the fines were never remitted. The burgess stated that the fines had never been collected, the matter being allowed to rest since the hearing.

S. D. Wilson, acting chairman of the committee of 12, was very reticent when seen last night regarding the crusade. He refused to give any intimation as to the future course of the committee, stating that had been left with Attorney Carmack. As the latter is away on a vacation nothing definite could be learned.

Notwithstanding the decision of the attorney general that all fines remitted must be collected, the committee of five representing the druggists had informations made against Druggists W. L. Smith, S. W. Covell and J. C. Pauly, before Justice John J. Walker shortly after midnight. The official time given out was 3 seconds after 12 o'clock. The clerks of these three establishments were also included in the informations. Their names, together with the informants' names, were withheld. The committee of 12, representing the church people, made no informations that could be learned of. If any were made they were handled by some one representing the committee, as all members of that body retired at an early hour last night. None were made before Burgess John A. Keys. The committee will probably make their informations today.

Surprising Reports Concerning the Russian Fleet in the Black Sea.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

LONDON, Aug. 9.—In spite of the almost universal opinion that Russia will have no trouble in making hash out of little Japan in the war which experts here have predicted for next spring, advices from Odessa, where the Russian Black sea fleet is about to begin its 15th annual maneuvers, indicates that a part at least of the Muscovite navy is in a bad way. For 14 years the Black sea squadron, consisting of four first class battleships, two cruisers, three torpedo cruisers and half a dozen torpedo boats of ancient pattern, has carried out exactly the same program year after year, allowing the officers and crews no opportunity to become efficient in up-to-date drills.

Worse yet is the reported condition of the fleet. The Rostislaf, flagship of Rear Admiral Kreiger, is said to be fitted with second-hand boilers, installed by enterprising individuals in Sebastopol, and it is generally understood that for other reasons also, the Rostislaf would not last through a severe engagement. The Katharine II., another of the first class battleships, is said to be so frail that only half cartridges are allowed to be used in the salutes which the vessel occasionally is called upon to fire.

The third of the battleships is declared by experts to be unequal to the strain of discharging her heavy ordnance and the fourth is almost as feeble. One of the cruisers also is defective.

ELECTRIC AUTOMOBILE DID A TUMBLING ACT

An electric automobile coming down the Beechwood boulevard yesterday afternoon upset near Lindhurst and threw out the occupants, a young woman and a man. The woman landed on the grass that lines the drive and the man in the road. Neither was badly hurt, but the machine was wrecked. The couple left the demolished auto along the road and walked back up the hill and disappeared. Later the machine was taken away. Hundreds of persons witnessed the accident, but no one knew the victims.

Arrests Made in Highland Park.

Lieut. Patrick Meenan of the park police arrested seven Italians in Highland park yesterday and locked them up in the East End police station, charged with violating a city ordinance. Four of the men were drinking in the park and the rest were drinking and climbing the trees, stealing apples.

JEALOUSLY THE CAUSE

Lancaster Drug Clerk Murders His Wife and Folds Her in His Arms.

QUARRELED SINCE MARRIAGE

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 9.—A bride of four months, Mrs. Edgar H. Frantz, aged 19, is dead, slain by her husband, a well-known young drug clerk of this city, who also died tonight from the effects of morphine, which he swallowed after firing two bullets into his wife. The woman was murdered in her sleep. Frantz left a note in which he said they had agreed to die together, but from the note and other facts it is believed Mrs. Frantz was the unsuspecting victim of jealousy. He was an excessive smoker of cigarettes. The tragedy occurred about 4 o'clock this morning, but was not discovered until after noon.

Frantz was 21 years old. The life of the young couple had been made unpleasant by quarrels ever since their marriage. Frantz was intensely jealous of his young wife. The latter was a strikingly beautiful woman, and although she had a good reputation, Frantz alleged that she was too intimate with other men. Several times, it is stated, he threatened to kill her. She expected to leave tomorrow on a visit to the west with her mother. Frantz opposed this trip and there was much quarreling about it.

Last night, however, the couple were apparently on the best of terms and in good spirits. They retired about 11 o'clock and requested that they be called at noon today. When an attempt was made to arouse them they failed to respond. Forcing open their door, Frantz's father found them lying on the bed, the woman clasped in her husband's arms. She was dead, with a bullet hole in her head and another through her breast. Frantz was still alive, but breathing laboriously. On a wash stand beside the bed was found a revolver with two empty cartridges.

Evidently Frantz had killed his wife while she was asleep, holding the weapon close to her body. The first shot must have caused instant death. There was not the slightest sign of a struggle and very little blood flowed from the wound. After satisfying himself that she was dead he deliberately walked around the bed to place the revolver on the wash stand, and, it is believed, then took the poison, and after writing the note got back in the bed and folded the woman he had murdered in what he meant to be his dying embrace.

The note, addressed to his mother, was written on a page torn from a memorandum book, and he had evidently been in a highly nervous state while writing it. It was as follows:

"Dear Mother: Married against your will. Friday morning May went shopping and met a fellow. Hoping to meet you all in heaven. E. H. FRANTZ."

In a postscript was scrawled: "Goodby all. She said she was willing to die with me."

Mrs. Frantz's maiden name was Miss May Liebold.

BOTH CLAIM VICTORY.

McComas and Lowndes Factions Contending for Control of Convention.

CUMBERLAND, MD., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—Both the McComas and the Lowndes-Wellington people are tonight claiming control of next Tuesday's Republican nominating convention, as the result of last night's primaries, but at a conference of the anti-McComas leaders today, when reports were taken up, the leaders stated emphatically that the victory over the McComas people is complete.

Benjamin Richmond, McComas' lieutenant, last night stated that he would have 60 votes out of the 123 in the convention, but the anti-McComas people showed 63 pledged votes, a majority without counting the three Frostburg or the two Lonaconing districts. Positive information from both places last night gave a district in each place to the anti-McComas people, swelling their vote to over 75.

If the test of strength Tuesday shows the anti-McComas people in the majority, Charles H. Holtzman will probably be made chairman. The anti-McComas leaders state they will have no trouble at the coming primaries for judicial and state delegations in carrying them for Lowndes for governor.

TELEPHONE CABLES CUT.

Pittsburgh and Allegheny Company Offers $500 Reward for Detection of Perpetrators.

Two large cables in Allegheny and the toll line between Allegheny and Bellevue, of the Pittsburgh & Allegheny Telephone Company, were cut between 10:30 o'clock Saturday night and 1 o'clock yesterday morning, thus badly crippling the company's service on the North Side.

The cable at Dawson and Veto streets was cut half in two, destroying the service of 50 wires. At Allegheny avenue, near Beech avenue, a cable was partially severed and the service of 25 lines was destroyed. The toll line was cut near the High bridge.

The company's linemen are on a strike, but it is not known whether they had anything to do with the cutting of the lines or not. The company offers $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of the guilty party or parties.

WANTED FOR DESERTION.

J. T. Dunn of Second Avenue Arrested for Leaving Receiving Ship.

J. T. Dunn, 22 years old, of No. 711 Second avenue, is held at Central police station upon information from Capt. Charles L. Thomas of the receiving ship Franklin, charging him with desertion. Supt. John McElghe was instructed by letter to arrest Dunn, who left the ship at Norfolk, shortly after visiting his home here on furlough.

Special Officers Robert Dennison and Harry Merritt were put on the case last night and succeeded in getting Dunn in bed asleep. The officers went into the man's room at No. 711 Second avenue, and awoke him. Dunn looked up, saying, "Well, I've been expecting it." He offered no resistance.

Got Off With Light Fines.

Bertha Wesley and Jennie Richards of No. 1226 Clark street were heard on a charge of keeping disorderly houses. They were each fined $15 and costs. Two sisters in the house were fined $5 and costs and four others $1 and costs. Ella Barbour of No. 15 Boone alley was heard on a like charge, and was fined $5 and costs. Two visitors were each fined $3 and costs.

ANARCHY'S FLAG SURE TO FOLLOW

President Roosevelt Calls Upon Americans to Suppress the Mob Spirit.

FORERUNNER OF TYRANNY

In a Letter Commending Gov. Durban's Prompt Action the Nation's Executive Gives His Own Views Upon the Numerous Lynchings.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 9.—In a letter, the publication of which was authorized today, President Roosevelt commends Gov. Durbin of Indiana for the attitude he assumed recently respecting lynching. The president also embraces the opportunity to express his own views in reference to lynching and mob violence, generally, pointing out that mob violence is merely one form of anarchy and that anarchy is the forerunner of tyranny.

The president vigorously urges that the penalty for that crime which most frequently induces a resort to lynching shall be applied swiftly and surely, but by due process of the courts, so that it may be demonstrated "that the law is adequate to deal with crime by freeing it from every vestige of technicality and delay." President Roosevelt's letter follows:

My Dear Governor Durbin:

Permit me to thank you as an American citizen, for the admirable way in which you have vindicated the majesty of the law by your recent action in reference to lynching. I feel, my dear sir, that you have made all men your debtors who believe, as all farseeing men must, that the well-being, indeed the very existence, of the republic depends upon that spirit of orderly liberty under the law, which is as incompatible with mob violence as with any form of despotism. Of course mob violence is simply one form of anarchy; and anarchy is now, as it always has been, the handmaid and forerunner of tyranny.

I feel that you have not only reflected honor upon the state which for its good fortune, has you as its chief executive, but upon the whole nation. It is incumbent upon every man throughout this country not only to hold up your hands in the course you have been following, but to show his realization that the matter is one of vital concern to us all.

Good Cause for Alarm.

All thoughtful men must feel the gravest alarm over the growth of lynching in this country, and especially over the peculiarly hideous forms so often taken by mob violence when colored men are the victims—on which occasion the mob seems to lay most weight, not on the crime, but on the color of the criminal. In a certain proportion of these cases the man lynched has been guilty of a crime more horrible than death, such a crime so horrible that as far as he himself is concerned he has forfeited the right to any kind of sympathy whatsoever.

The feeling of all good citizens that such a hideous crime shall not be hideously punished by mob violence is due not in the least to sympathy for the criminal, but to a very lively sense of the train of dreadful consequences which follow the course taken by the mob in exacting inhuman vengeance for an inhuman wrong. In such cases, moreover, it is well to remember that the criminal not merely sins against humanity in inexpiable and unpardonable fashion, but sins particularly against his own race, and does them a wrong far greater than any white man can possibly do them.

Therefore, in such cases the colored people throughout the land should in every possible way show their belief that they, more than all others in the community, are horrified at the commission of such a crime and are peculiarly concerned in taking every possible measure to prevent its recurrence and to bring the criminal to immediate justice. The slightest lack of vigor either in renunciation of the crime or in bringing the criminal to justice is itself unpardonable.

Law Should Not Delay.

Moreover, every effort should be made under the law to expedite the proceedings of justice in the case of such an awful crime. But it cannot be necessary in order to accomplish this to deprive any citizen of those fundamental rights to be heard in his own defense which are so dear to us all and which lie at the root of our liberty. It certainly ought to be possible by the proper administration of the laws to secure swift vengeance upon the criminals, and the best and immediate efforts of all legislators, judges and citizens should be addressed to securing such reforms in our legal procedure as to leave no vestige of excuse for those misguided men who undertake to reap vengeance through violent measures.

Men who have been guilty of a crime like rape or murder should be visited with swift and certain punishment, while the right to speak with peculiar emphasis for freedom and for fair treatment of all men without regard to differences of race, fortune, creed or color, we shall forfeit the right so to speak when we commit or condone such crimes as these of which I speak.

The nation, like the individual, cannot commit a crime with impunity. If we are guilty of lawlessness and brutal violence, whether our guilt consists in active participation therein or in mere connivance and encouragement, we shall assuredly suffer later on because of what we have done. The corner stone of this republic, as of all free governments, is respect for and obedience to the law. Our boast is that the law is enforced or evaded, whether by rich man or poor man, by black man or white, we are by just so much weakening the bonds of our civilization and increasing the chances of its overthrow, and of the substitution therefor of a system in which there shall be violent alternations of anarchy and tyranny. Sincerely yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Pastor and Wife Celebrate Their Silver Wedding Day

The Rev. Henry J. Schuh and Wife.

The Rev. Henry J. Schuh, pastor of the St. John's German Evangelical Lutheran church, Liberty street and Madison avenue, Allegheny, and his wife, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary, beginning last Friday and ending yesterday. The entire congregation took part in congratulating the happy couple.

The celebrants had intended to allow the event to pass with no special feature, but the congregation planned otherwise. About 8 p. m. Friday the ladies' aid society and the Pittsburgh conference of Lutheran ministers assembled at a member's home nearby and went to the pastor's residence, No. 725 Avery street, in a body. Just before the guests arrived Mr. Schuh's son had returned home on his vacation. He had not been home since Easter, having graduated from the Columbus college and since been teaching.

While the family was rejoicing at the son's return the visitors entered the residence. The women of the church took with them a bountiful supper, during which several brief addresses were made.

The Rev. Mr. Schuh was born in Germany, and when 2 years old came to this country with his parents, locating at Galion, O. He studied at the Capitol University of Columbus, O., where he was graduated in 1872. His brother, L. H. Schuh, is at present president of the college.

Mr. Schuh entered the ministry shortly after he was graduated, taking charge of the Lutheran church at Winchester, O. Later he was transferred to Detroit, where he remained several years. On August 7, 1878, he married Miss Carrie Bowman of Columbus.

For the past 18 years Mr. Schuh has been in charge of the Allegheny church, and during his pastorate has built up a congregation which is a credit to the denomination and to the city.

MILLIONAIRES TRIED TO SAVE BURNING CASINO

Novel Fire Brigade Organized When Gambling Room Was in Flames.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]
(Copyright, 1903, by New York Herald Co.)

TROUVILLE, FRANCE, Aug. 9.—The casino of Trouville was completely destroyed by fire today. A few minutes before the fire was discovered a large crowd had assembled in the main room and gambling was about to begin. Cards had hardly been dealt when a cry of fire was raised. With the greatest sang froid Banker Fighlof shouted: "Messieurs, pick up your stakes." He then threw down the cards and got up from his seat.

The fire began in the ceiling of the gambling room and was caused by a short circuit of electric wires. In a few minutes the whole of the right wing of the building was in flames. Employes began to throw furniture out of the windows and soon the beach was covered with chairs, tables, curtains and other furniture. The spectacle on the beach was a most curious one. Fishermen, visitors, sportsmen and women in splendid dresses were helping to work the pumps or were forming chains to pass buckets from the river.

Among those who were passing buckets or throwing water on the flames were Baron Henri de Rothschild, M. Callleaux, Gaston Merier, Comte de Chevigne, Gaston Dreyfuss, M. Charron and many others. The building was insured, but the proprietors had gone to great expense to redecorate the room. The proprietors also lose about 500,000 francs expended on the arrangements for the season.

WOMAN HORSEWHIPPED INTRUDER AT HER HOME

An Ohio Man Gets a Thrashing and Is Also Landed in Prison.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

DELAWARE, O., Aug. 9.—W. P. Irwin, a well known resident of this city, was horsewhipped today by Mrs. William Bowan, and tonight languishes in the city prison awaiting the action of Police Judge Clippinger.

Irwin called at the Bowan home, it is charged, in the absence of the woman's husband and, it is said, offered advances that were repelled with emphasis. The man is alleged to have pressed himself into the house, and Mrs. Bowan is said to have threatened to call the police, but even that failed to frighten him. Seeing a whip near at hand, Mrs. Bowan used it with all her force.

The excitement attracted the neighbors and Officer Charles Ruder was summoned, but Irwin ran through the back way and escaped. No sooner had the officer retired than Irwin, it is said, returned and began to pay his attentions to Mrs. Bowan. The officer was recalled and landed the man in prison.

QUAY GOES EAST.

Appears to Be Doubtful About the Continuance of Fusion in This County.

Senator M. S. Quay went to New York last night. He was accompanied by Mrs. Quay. They are going to the summer home of their son Richard on Long Island.

Quay said he was entirely ignorant of the local situation. When told that the Democrats and Citizens were supposed to get together this week he gave intimation that he was doubtful about a continuance of fusion.

M. G. Leslie repeated yestrday that he expected the Republicans to harmonize. He says that his plans for securing party peace are working well and predicts that something definite will be done in a very short time.

Director E. M. Bigelow is scheduled to return to Pittsburgh Wednesday. The same day Murry A. Verner is to come from his summer home at Lakewood, N. J. Wednesday is the date fixed for William J. Brennen to make known his decision in the district attorney nomination. He says that he intends to confer with a number of Democrats today.

Tool Dresser Killed.

BUTLER, PA., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—Clyde Plaisted, 22 years old, a tool dresser employed on a drilling outfit on the Thomas W. Phillips & Sons' property at McCalmont, was instantly killed last night by being struck by a rope. While he was assisting in running the drilling tools the rope slipped and dealt him a blow on the head. He was a son of Patrick Pigisted. He was a member of Butler lodge, Woodmen of the World.

DIED.

BASEBALL BLEACHERS CAUSED NINE DEATHS

Five More Fatalities Added to the List of Victims at Philadelphia.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9.—Five additional deaths occurred today as the result of the accident yesterday at the Philadelphia National league baseball park, making a total of nine fatalities. Two hundred victims were treated at the various hospitals and it is believed that fully 100 more received attention at the various drug stores in the vicinity of the ball grounds. Of the injured still in the hospital five are said to be in a critical condition.

The Dead.

LOUIS M'GRATH, 28 years.
WILLIAM RODGER, 60 years.
MATTHEW P. REED, 30 years.
JOSEPH EDGAR, 50 years.
WILLIAM J. GRAHAM, 26 years.
GEORGE CUNNINGHAM, 50 years.
NICHOLAS MOSES, 55 years.
EDWARD WILLIAMSON, 30 years.
UNKNOWN MAN.

Coroner Dugan today began an investigation into the cause of the accident. No date has been set for the inquests, but the coroner said they would be held within 10 days.

"The investigation will be thorough and rigid," said Coroner Dugan. "If there has been any criminal negligence the responsible persons will be held accountable."

President Potter of the Philadelphia baseball club, who has been out of the city, arrived tonight, accompanied by President Pulliam of the National league.

Shortly after their arrival a statement was issued by the club officials expressing sympathy for the injured and for the families of the dead, and announced that immediate games would be postponed.

CIGARETTE IS FATAL.

Sets Fire to a Bed, and the Smoker Will Die of His Burns.

Frank Sokan, a Pole, was fatally burned at his home, No. 4809 Butler street, last night. He had been drinking heavily, it was said, and lay down on a bed in a room on the ground floor of his house. He was smoking a cigarette and this is believed to have ignited the bed clothes.

Officer Edward Welsh and Fireman James Markham were attracted by the smoke and bursting in the door found Sokan in a mass of flames. They extinguished the fire and sent the man to St. Francis hospital. Sokan was in such a stupor from the effects of the liquor that he was unable to escape from the room. He was horribly burned about the face, hands and body and the hospital authorities have no hope for him. He has a large family.

Enormous Collection at Camp Meeting Comenced With 28 Cents.

OLD ORCHARD, ME., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—The Rev. Dr. Simpson of New York, in the Christian Alliance camp-meeting here today, raised in cash and pledges, $42,000 for foreign missions. It was the closing day of the convention. The forenoon session, in which nearly $30,000 was raised, was held in the grove, and attended by 3,500 persons.

The morning collection started with a gift of 28 cents from a woman, who said it was all the money she had in the world. The largest pledge was for $6,000.

TOOK ANOTHER CHANCE.

Man and Woman Out on Bail Arrested Again for Similar Offense.

Bridget Bell, William Kirby, Bridget Kirby, Mary Gelvick and William Scully are charged with keeping a disorderly house at No. 2405 Charlotte street. The first two are already held for court in $1,000 bail for illegal liquor selling on a former charge, and have been arrested several times. Two visitors were captured.

Joseph Johnson, a negro, was arrested for keeping a gambling house at 4516 Penn avenue. Six visitors, all negroes, were arrested.

Thirty-Eight Are Still Out.

The striking tin workers of the Port Vue tin mills held a meeting in McKeesport last night and were addressed by President Shaffer of the Amalgamated association, Vice President Gibson and their attorney, William J. Brennen of Pittsburgh. The men were counseled to stay out and use no violence toward the men working at the mills. Thirty-eight men were present at the meeting, this being the total number of men still out.

ALL MACEDONIA NOW UP IN ARMS

Separation or Extermination Can Only End Battle Against Turks.

PREPARING LETTER TO POWERS

Revolutionary Leaders Are Hopeful That Foreign Intervention Will Prevent the Employement of the Bashi Bazouks. Situation More Critical.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

SOFIA, BULGARIA, Aug. 9.—"Nothing can end the present revolution in Macedonia until our national aspirations are satisfied or those fighting to attain them are exterminated."

This was the concluding sentence of a statement made today to the special correspondent of the Associated Press who is investigating the situation in Macedonia by the Macedonian committee at the revolutionary headquarters here. Boris Sarafoff's representatives here believe that the desired results will be reaped through the present movement.

"The object of the rising," said the Macedonian committeeman, "is to win reform which will assure to the Christian population of Macedonia security for their lives and property, and the right to participate in the administration of the country. The present revolutionary organization came into existence nine years ago when the persecution of the Bulgarian population of Macedonia became flagrant.

"Today all Macedonia is embraced in the movement and, though it was not intended to strike so soon, because the preparations for the uprising were not sufficiently completed, the recent outrages of the Turks, the massacre of the innocent, the filling of the prisons with the pacific rural population, pillaging the entire villages, and the extorting of heavy fines from others under various pretexts, so exasperated all, that the insurrection was decided upon, no matter what might be the outcome.

"The fighting area is widening, and will gradually embrace all Macedonia until the autonomy of the country has been gained by force of arms or by the intervention of those great powers, which desire peace. Not until then will we lay down our arms."

The Macedonian revolutionary committee is now drawing up and will shortly circulate a declaration addressed to the powers, explaining Macedonian grievances and the objects of the revolution. The Bulgarian ministry is closely watching the situation in Macedonia, and has decided to increase the frontier forces. Orders have been telegraphed to the frontier authorities to redouble their vigilance and prevent all unauthorized individuals as well as insurgent bands, from crossing the Turkish frontier.

The foreign minister has informed the representatives of the powers, that the government will use its utmost endeavor to quell all unrest in Bulgaria, occasioned by the events in Macedonia, but the powers must do their part, and take the necessary steps to induce the porte to stop the persecution of the innocent, and the employment of the Bashi Bazouks in suppressing the revolution. "The massacres likely to follow the letting loose of the Bashi Bazouks," added the minister, "are liable to precipitate the movement in Bulgaria in favor of the revolution and thus force the hand of the government."

LABEL IS TURNED DOWN.

Labor League Refuses to Indorse the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union.

The United Labor league last night considered the fight between the Cutters' assembly No. 5662, K. of L., the Shoe Workers' Protective union and the Boot and Shoe Workers' union. The fight started in Lynn, Mass., January 16, and reached this city about a month ago. The league decided last night that the Boot and Shoe Workers' union had taken unfair methods in its manner of building up its organization and refused to indorse the stamp as being a union label.

Philip Byrne, national organizer of the American Federation of Labor, representing the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, was accorded the floor for 50 minutes. His arguments did not bear out the facts as known in this city, and when confronted with the evidence he left the meeting.

The fight, as stated in yesterday's Gazette, was caused by the B. & S. U. granting the stamp to any manufacturer. After he commenced using it it would compel all the people working for him to join the union. The stamp was granted to the manufacturer, regardless of wages paid, the number of hours worked, or any working conditions.

The cutters at Lynn came out on strike for an increase of wages in one factory. The B. & S. U. scoured the country for people to fill their places and spent much money in breaking the strike. This was condemned at last night's meeting. It was argued that one union should not attempt to destroy another, but should endeavor to bring about a settlement.

STREET CARS COLLIDE.

Four Passengers Injured in a Peculiar Wreck on the Lincoln Avenue Line.

Four persons were injured last night in a head-on collision between two cars on the Lincoln avenue line at Lincoln avenue and Arbor street. The accident occurred at a point where a single track is used and two cars were approaching to pass at a switch. The city-bound car failed to enter the siding and crashed into the east-bound car, which was waiting to pass.

William Dickinson of No. 62 Henry street, who, with his wife and two children, was seated on one of the cars, was caught in the wreck and badly cut and bruised by flying glass. His wife and the children were likewise bruised. All were taken home in a carriage.

Brakeman Killed Near East Brady.

OIL CITY, PA., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—Robert E. Caldwell, 30 years old, son of Thomas Caldwell, a well known Allegheny Valley passenger conductor, fell under the wheels of a freight train near East Brady this afternoon and was almost instantly killed. He had been employed as a brakeman six months. He leaves a widow with 3-months-old twins at his home in this city.

Ex-Policeman Sent to Jail.

Ex-Policeman West Essex was sent to jail yesterday in default of $300 bail for a hearing at a later date on a charge of assault and battery, preferred by Elizabeth Cleveland. She alleges that Essex beat her one day last week.

Humors

They take possession of the body, and are Lords of Misrule.

They are attended by pimples, boils, the itching tetter, salt rheum, and other cutaneous eruptions; by feelings of weakness, languor, general debility and what not.

They cause more suffering than anything else.

Health, Strength, Peace and Pleasure require their expulsion, and this is positively effected, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Which radically and permanently drives them out and builds up the whole system.

FOUR DROWNED FROM A LAUNCH

Small Craft Containing University Men Explodes Near Rockland, Me.

HEROIC ATTEMPT AT RESCUE

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

Rockland, Me., Aug. 9.—Four young men of this city lost their lives last night by the sinking of a gasoline launch off Ash Point. Two of the party were saved.

The Dead.

HENRY K. CROCKER, 23, son of Supt. Jonathan W. Crocker of the Rockland and Camden Water Company, and a graduate of the university of Maine.

FRANK F. VEAZIE, 21, son of Mrs. Edward Veazie of this city, and a student of the university of Maine.

RAYMOND G. HALL, 19, son of Capt. Hudson Hall.

CHARLES W. HOLMES, 23, son of Capt. John H. Holmes, and a traveling salesman.

Those saved are Oliver F. Hills of this city and Thomas Hodges of Bridgeton, a student at the University of Maine.

The party started for Pleasant Beach. When off Ash Beach the launch became entangled in a fish weir. An attempt was made to turn back when, suddenly, there was a flash and the launch was enveloped in flames. The six occupants of the craft leaped overboard. They were within 1,000 feet of the shore, but Holmes and Crocker were unable to swim. The efforts of the others were directed toward saving these two, and Crocker nearly drowned. Hills by grasping him about the shoulders. Both men sank, but Hills finally succeeded in freeing himself.

Hodges swam 30 yards to a boat and, cutting it loose, found that he had no oars. By this time Veazie and Hall had half filled the launch with water in an attempt to stifle the flames, but the fire spread and drove them from their only refuge. Veazie started to swim toward the small boat and Hodges threw the rudder toward him, but the man sank. Crocker disappeared at the side of the burning launch, which soon afterwards sank with Hall, who was clinging to the stern. Hills succeeded in swimming to the small boat in which Hodges had found a refuge.

All the bodies were recovered. It was discovered today that the top of the gasoline tank had been left open. Several leaks of the fluid had apparently dropped to the body of the launch. A lighted lantern at the stern of the boat probably caused the explosion.

Smallpox Death in Etna.

John Langfried of Etna, who was quarantined for smallpox Thursday, died yesterday and was buried at 6 o'clock in the evening. In his late home there are still three cases of smallpox, two visitors from Ohio, the brothers John and Robert Smith, and his son, Philip Langfried.

AUGUST STORE NEWS.

Good reasons why this should be a busy week in this store. It is true there are thousands of people out of the city, but it is also true there are a great many tens of thousands here, and many of them in the store daily. Perhaps some of those away would like to be here with us, and not miss the good values we are giving our customers these August days. At any rate, we will go right on with these large and interesting offerings of desirable goods from all departments at lowest prices through this month. But to begin with we give a very prominent place to our Great Sale of Furniture.

The following is a partial list of articles included in this sale. Those who come promptly will buy them exactly as they are advertised. We cannot duplicate these at the prices we have named. We have a large stock coming in from the manufacturers, hence our anxiety to make room in our Furniture Department. These goods are not old styles, but right up-to-date and in finish they are first-class. But the majority we have only one piece, so when sold there will be no more at these very low prices.

Monday, August 10, 1903.

It is not surprising news that King Peter of Servia is terrorized by his entourage, or that he has been forced to withdraw one of his appointments because it was not satisfactory to the assassin band. That is what might naturally be expected from that quarter. The pretense that the beneficiary of the military assassination plot might attempt to mete out punishment to instigators or perpetrators was never taken seriously. It was ridiculous on the face of it. The one thing that may excite surprise is that King Peter had the temerity to name a court marshal without first consulting the chief murderers.

Since July 1 no less than 300 cases of typhoid fever have been reported in Pittsburgh. Since January 1 there have been 280 cases of the same disease reported in Chicago. The population of Chicago is almost five times that of Pittsburgh, yet in seven months it has fewer cases of typhoid fever than Pittsburgh has in a little more than one month. Conditions in the two cities are much the same, except in the matter of water supply. This difference gives to Pittsburgh 35 times as much typhoid fever, proportionally to population, as Chicago. In face of facts like these time drags along without application of the obvious remedy. The plain situation beggars comment.

To the question whether the new county detective force is of any value comes the unexpected answer that it has diminished the Sunday receipts of the traction company on the line operating to the West Liberty and High bridge section. Inquiry might develop the fact that there is less Sunday travel to other out-of-town resorts that had acquired unsavory reputation during the days of unfettered gambling and drinking. District Attorney Haymaker is probably well within the facts in his estimate of the influence of the new force as a preventive of crime, and we hope he is equally accurate in his estimate of the efficiency of the county force if called upon to run down criminals. But in this case the old adage is wholly true that "prevention is better than cure."

Statistics from the treasury department on the trade of the United States with Russia come as a surprise. They show both imports and exports to have been the largest in history. Prior to the clash over the countervailing duty on sugar it was known that American exports to Russia were increasing rapidly, but it was feared M. Witte's retaliation would put a check upon them. Such does not appear to have been the case. Russia is now buying more American goods than ever, and the United States is importing more from Russia than before the countervailing duty incident. The facts are significantly indicative that great development is really taking place in Russia, demanding American machinery and returning products that are needed in this country. And there has been no stoppage on account of Kishineff.

In some quarters there is an effort to cast doubt upon the Wall Street Journal's denial of the ridiculous story that the trouble in Wall street has been brought about by the Standard Oil interests to injure President Roosevelt on account of his efforts to promote publicity of corporate affairs. The Journal's only mistake was to dignify that yarn by denying it. The head of the Standard Oil is no saint; neither is he any such Machiavelli as painted. The original suggestion of control of huge corporations by publicity came from Mr. Rockefeller, and there is no reason to believe he has changed his mind. Besides, he is no fool who would sacrifice millions for a political sentiment. If he plays the stock market it is for profit, not to create public feeling for which he has no use.

Dr. H. Doyle, in the course of an interview printed in The Sunday Gazette, cited some damaging incidents against the bureau of health management of contagion. This information recalls the fact that an investigation of that bureau might have been made ere this but for the refusal of Councilman Upperman to attend sessions of the committee. In justice to the bureau it should have been given prompt opportunity to deny charges against it and in justice to the public assurance ought to have been made doubly sure that everything possible was being done to stop the spread of disease. Possibly the recent developments in the Seventeenth ward have brought the importance of this matter home to Mr. Upperman. Whether so, or not, it should not be long until other members of the committee are able to get a quorum to transact business.

Pittsburghers will read with regret the statement that 800 trees in Schenley park are dying on account of the soot and ore dust precipitated upon them and that shift will have to be made with plants less susceptible to asphyxiation. It is an apparently hopeless task to combat the evil influences. If washing had any value the frequent dashing rains this year should have been sufficient. Instead of being beneficial the moisture seems only to encourage the ore dust to cling to the foliage. It is a serious problem. Schenley park is a fine pleasure ground, but if it will not grow trees it cannot serve all of the purposes for which it was intended. It is little mitigation to know that the butternut—juglans—will grow anywhere, for it does not give first-class shade and alone would become monotonous.

Dr. Samuel A. Langley's small model airship has made another successful flight that indicates great possibilities for the large machine that is being perfected on the Potomac below Washington. The small model on Saturday traveled for about 600 yards and then sank in the river because its supply of gasoline was exhausted. It is expected a test of the large machine will soon be made with a man on board to steer it. If it does as well proportionately as the model, it should make a flight of several miles, at least, at any elevation and in any direction desired. But if Prof. Langley should make a failure with his machine it will prove a serious discouragement to scientific investigation of aerial navigation, since there is no more competent mathematician to calculate resistances and velocities. Pittsburgh, however, has much confidence in its former citizen.

Foerderer's Successor.

Since the verbal passages relating to former Postmaster General Wanamaker for election to congress from the Fourth Pennsylvania district (in Philadelphia) in succession to the late Robert H. Foerderer, public interest in the subject outside the Quaker city has apparently lagged. Philadelphians will, of course, select some one to their liking, or the local Republican organization will select some one for them, and if they do not like him at first they may learn to like him. Still, there is no scarcity of men well liked and esteemed by the people of Philadelphia and of the Fourth district, from among whom the managing politicians ought to be able to pick a winner to their own liking. There has been some discussion in Philadelphia papers of the method of selection, as well as the sort of man to be selected, and while there has been an apparent intention on the part of district and other leaders to nominate for congress, as they did recently for judge of one of the Philadelphia courts, there has been also some insistence that the nomination ought to be made by a representative convention. A week ago, however, the Philadelphia Press in a leading editorial article on the subject said:

> The character of the nomination is more vital than the manner of it. The opportunity ought to be seized to strengthen the Philadelphia delegation in congress. This city once exercised a commanding influence in the house through the pre-eminence of its representatives. Every citizen recalls with pride the period when William D. Kelley and Samuel J. Randall held a recognized sway and spoke with acknowledged authority.
> The city has good and worthy members now. One or two of them have attained high rank, and their position and influence are appreciated. Others will grow with experience and length of service. It is no disparagement of them to say that the delegation could be materially strengthened by the addition of a representative of first-class ability and reputation.
> We are sure that general public sentiment will recognize the policy of thus increasing the force and strength of our city's representation in congress. The opportunity is here. Will not the managers and the people see and seize it?

The Press is right. Pennsylvania, as well as Philadelphia, is interested in this matter, and Pennsylvania will be glad if a man is chosen who is able not merely to represent it well in the work of the committees, where legislation is molded, but to hold his own in debate on the floor of the house—a man who will as fitly represent Philadelphia and Eastern Pennsylvania as John Dalzell represents Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania. Two such men working together would be a power for the political advancement of the commonwealth, for they would properly interpret the best sentiment of Pennsylvania to the nation in the popular branch of congress.

The editorial from which we quote was, it is probable, written by the editor-in-chief of the Press. If not, it doubtless came under his eye before its publication and had his approval. The editor-in-chief of the Press is, like Mr. Wanamaker, a former postmaster general, and while Mr. Wanamaker is no mean orator, it is not unfair to say that his successor in office excels him in this field of usefulness, and would at once take high rank in congress because of his oratorical ability no less than because of his intimate knowledge of public affairs. Modesty forbids that Charles Emory Smith boom himself for congress in his own paper. He is, however, such a man as his editorial describes, and such a man as is described Philadelphians ought to send to congress to represent them and the state. Mr. Smith's name was mentioned almost in the same breath as that of Mr. Wanamaker, and his harmonious relations with the regular party organization would make him acceptable to many who would rebel at the thought of Wanamaker.

Where to Look.

Judge W. H. Thomas of Alabama, in a recent charge to the grand jury, called attention to the fact that the number of homicides in the United States was greater for the same period than the number of British troops killed during the South African war. The death roll of the South African war on the British side, including death by disease, numbered 21,847; the homicides for three years in the United States numbered 31,395.

Commenting upon these facts the Outlook justly remarks: "It is clear that lynching is less a disease than the symptom of a disease both widespread and deeply seated," and no matter how severe and effective may be the measures taken to repress the symptom, the disease will not be affected. As the Outlook puts the case, "passion for revenge on lynchers will not cure the passion for revenge which has produced lynching." The lynching spirit is only one phase of a spirit of lawlessness and of disregard for human life characteristic of this country and which is without parallel in civilized lands. The Outlook goes on to observe that the problem should be approached in a spirit of inquiry as to the causes of these conditions and whether these causes can be removed or modified by prudent legislation.

This line of reasoning is so sound and sensible that it causes some surprise when the theory is advanced that the underlying cause is an ethical decline in American character, which must be arrested by better home training and education. The Outlook says:

> We need in America to revise both our theology and our sociology, to redefine both liberty and law, and to counteract the unrestrained passion of the mob by cultivating a reverence for law and a passionate loyalty to it.

We take leave to say that while this sounds well it is futile twaddle. It is absurd to say that average American citizenship is ethically inferior to average Canadian, Australian, Algerian, Bosnian or South African citizenship. We mention these countries because they have wild parts where there are no old, settled conditions of law and order, and yet in none of them is there anything like the prevalence of homicide or the contempt of law which exists in this country. The sensible mode of procedure is to examine wherein our administration of justice and our institutions of public order differ from those of other civilized countries. For every effect there is a proportionate cause, and nothing is more certain than that the deplorable characteristics of American society are evidence of defective social organization. It is not a case of defective ethics, but of defective institutions.

Russia Has Troubles.

Russia is having trouble of its own without going abroad to fight for Manchuria, or to gain immediate access to the Aegean sea. The greater part of Southern Russia is infected by the Socialist propaganda. This has taken hold of the labor union movement and the consequence is numerous strikes for a fairer division of the fruits of toil. Strikes have led to rioting and the Russian government is treating the whole matter as a political revolutionary movement, putting it down with all the excessive severity known to the Russian army. The Cossacks are as merciless as a Russian anti-Semite mob, a band of Kurds or a Mussulman regiment.

That the disaffection in southern provinces of Russia is no new thing is in evidence through instructions sent to the governor prior to the Kishineff massacre. The minister at St. Petersburg advised the official in question to avert trouble by inoffensive means if possible, but to avoid harsh measures toward the peasantry in that province, because they were not yet infected by enmity toward the government "prevailing in other districts." The governor failed to avert the catastrophe by smooth means, in fact, he seemed to encourage the hostility toward the Jews. He has been punished. The government has undertaken to relieve the distress at Kishineff, and it has carefully refused to receive a petition from citizens of the United States that might have given the impression to disaffected subjects that powerful influences exist outside of Russia. Despite all these precautions the peasantry has dared to put forward its pretensions to better treatment, and it appears the Kishineff outrage is playing some part in the incipient revolt.

In Russia, as elsewhere, politics is apt to make strange bedfellows. The Jews are ordinarily peaceful, disposed to make sacrifices rather than fight. But they can fight upon occasion, as the history of Judas Maccabeus and many less renowned, but more modern warriors well shows. They have been attacked, slaughtered and are still menaced, despite their peaceful inclinations. So it is not strange if they be found lending aid and encouragement to a movement toward industrial or political emancipation, even though it be headed by their enemies, the Russian peasants.

Russia has always prided itself upon its solidarity. Its expansion has been by inches, through contiguous territory, and its effort has always been to Russianize its new possessions. Its statesmen have boasted that Russia needs only to defend its borders and that it has no outlying territories to be attacked. In its solidarity has been the strength of the empire. Yet there is in Russia an ever present danger of attack from within. The process of assimilation has never been complete. The systematic oppression of the peasantry, calculated to impress them with government power and to break the spirit of independence has created a rich soil for the growth of seeds of discontent. The struggle of poverty with the problem of existence and a heavy burden of imperial taxation has created a hardy race indifferent to suffering, with no affection for the dominating autocratic power. Those are dangerous conditions to which to add a little of the light of higher civilization. Imperial necessities compel the education of some portion of the people. Emigration has established lines of communication with the outside world despite rigorous censorship. The little light is penetrating and Russia faces a serious internal problem that may well make it cautious in the matter of provoking attack from without.

Bear News in Honolulu.

When matters in controversy between Russia and Japan recently reached an apparently acute stage some anxiety for the sugar crop was felt in Hawaii. Prospective trouble between Russia and England, or between Russia and China, or even between Russia and the United States would not have caused anyone to worry about the sugar ingathering, and probably no more concern would have been felt in Hawaii because of a prospective clash between Russia and Japan than because of a prospective mix-up between Russia and any other power if some one had not happened to think of the Japanese labor in Hawaii and the probability that many of the laborers belonged to the Japanese army reserve. Then an official of the Japanese consulate at Honolulu was consulted and he said: "There are 60,000 Japanese in the Hawaiian islands, and I should say that one-third of these are liable to be called home for military duty in the event of Japan engaging in a foreign war." Of course, he also said that there was not even a hint from Japan that there was any prospect of a call, but the fact that 20,000 laborers might be called away at a critical moment for the harvest was somewhat disturbing to some—perhaps to many. Fortunately, however, there is usually an optimist on hand on an occasion of the kind to direct attention to the silver lining. "How," asked some one, "are these 20,000 Japanese reservists to be gathered up at one fell swoop and transported away from Hawaii to Japan immediately, if not sooner?" Of course, those were not the exact words, but the purport was the same. Also, it was asked, what would the Russian navy be doing while these Japanese recruits were en route across thousands of miles of water aboard transport ships? At this the silver lining appeared and the Hawaiian sugar harvest was saved. Fortunately, there was nothing else that needed to be saved. One may, however, in the light of what has happened in Wall street, readily see what might have happened at Honolulu if that island capital had possessed a stock exchange where securities based on Hawaiian enterprises were dealt in. Such a bear report as the possible withdrawal of 20,000 laborers (one-eighth of the total population) from their productive labors, at a time when they were most needed, might have sent things generally to smash, and the wreck of stock exchange bulls might have carpeted the floor of the great arena of high finance. Of course, it would have been discovered very soon after that the fears aroused were baseless, but after the mischief had been done the discovery wouldn't heal the wounds of those whose margins had been exhausted. However, the civilizing influences of Wall street have yet to get in their work in Honolulu, and so there was only a brief scare, if there was even that, followed by a laugh.

A Chicago college professor has by some occult process of reasoning reached the conclusion that the lynching spirit is a product of the Spanish war. We have no doubt that the same professor can also just as clearly demonstrate that all the lynchings that preceded the Spanish war as well as all that have occurred since are discreetly traceable to the same cause. The ability of these Chicago reasoners from cause to effect to connect one thing with any other old thing is of the sort that rises as superior to facts as the old woman of the nursery tale, who was rolled up in a blanket, rose superior to the moon. Intellect, as it is manifested in Chicago educational circles, is not only fearful but wonderful to contemplate.

A published statement that to collect a dollar of customs costs a trifle more than three cents ought to have added to it as a sort of political cracker the well-known truth that it is the policy of the Democratic party to save to the people of these United States the three cents thus expended by refraining from collecting the dollar. In view of the recent statement of Senator Gorman that the Democrats in the national campaign of next year will advocate "reform of the tariff and economy" this ought not to be forgotten.

Now that it is charged in the newspapers of Georgia that there is persistent and open lobbying in the legislature of that state, notwithstanding the Constitution forbids it, let Georgians place the old flag before them in all the beauty of its meaning of full equality for all before the law, regardless of color, and see whether the Constitution will follow it in a self-enforcing way. Where respect for one Constitution is prostituted to something else, how can the Georgia editors expect respect for another Constitution?

The Quiet Observer.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

The delights of our childhood is soon passed away,
And our glorious youth it departs—
And yit, dead and buried, they's blossoms of May
Ore they'r meadowland graves in our hearts.
So, friends of my barefooted days on the farm,
Whether truant in city er not,
God prosper you same as He's prosperin' me,
Whilse your past haint despised er forgot.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

We hear a good deal of talk about old fogies, and hayseeds, country bumpkins, and the like; and sometimes see and hear richly dressed young men and women making fun of folks from the country, which isn't nice, to say the least.

And again, we hear leading men, and prominent ladies, lauding the old-fashioned country home from which they came, seemingly proud of their humble, honest ancestry. And yet the sons and daughters of these same folks may think it smart to make fun of country people who are just as good as were their forebears.

No matter how well we may be getting along in the city, it is neither noble nor wise to forget the days on the farm, or to despise our old country home. To do so is to show that we are degenerating, for the really strong never despise the weak, nor do the truly great forget their humble homes; and they most generally have them to remember.

* * * * *

Dear Quiet Observer—I was much interested in the revival of old songs you treated us to a short time ago.

There is one you didn't mention, and of which I have lost the words—all but a few lines. It is "Kate Darling," and was sung by Catherine Hays in "Old Drury" in 1850, I think. I remember part of one stanza:

"Now the wild flowers may blossom, Katy Darling,
And the love birds may warble in every tree;
But in heaven I will meet thee, Katy Darling,
For there, love, thou'rt waiting for me."

Recalling old songs recalled other old memories that have a lingering sweetness; for instance, away back in the forties—I was just a little tot then—in a village on the old canal, not many miles from Pittsburgh, it was quite fashionable to have an "afternoon" once in awhile. Owing to the limited number of inhabitants the village boasted of, the invitations to an "afternoon" never exceeded six ladies.

I well remember that my mother's "afternoon" was the joy of my life, for then the tea table was set with her green sprigged china, and she received in a fawn-colored silk dress and dainty white cap with rainbow satin ribbon. The doctor's wife wore a black silk and white satin ribbons in her cap. The storekeeper's wife appeared in a black lustro gown and blue satin bows on her cap; and a dear old lady was dressed in black with black ribbons in her cap. Only the other day I read in The Gazette that her son had celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his wedding. She was the dignity of my mother's "afternoon," but she passed away long ago, and one after another the companions of that day followed her.

When I hear of the elaborate "afternoons" of the present day, I wonder if there can be half the enjoyment gotten out of the many luxuries and fine dresses, that those quiet, unpretentious ladies found in their tiny cups of tea, home-made biscuit and quince preserve.

Truly, I don't believe there can be. Do you, Mr. Observer? And don't you think that if fashion would decree just such quiet, little, chummy teas in place of so much "fuss and feathers" our young matrons would be happier, and grow more sensible?

AN EVERYDAY READER.

* * * * *

There are not a few right here among us who remember these "afternoons," also the winter "evenings," when neighbors would drop in unannounced—children, dogs and all, and have supper, talk over the news, spin a few yarns about the airly days, and discuss their neighbors some, too, but not to their injury.

After the supper things were cleared away the women folks would get out their knitting, and, maybe, some off to themselves to chat about clothes and those who wore them, while the men would talk hoss and dog and fox hunt, and brag more or less on their dogs and horses.

The younguns would find plenty of good entertainment in cracking walnuts, roasting chestnuts, guessing riddles, spelling hard words, and doing sums in their heads. After this had grown monotonous they would steal out into the kitchen and play pussy-wants-a-corner, blind-man, or do a few acrobatic stunts, which usually wound up with a tumble that hurt.

The wee ones would have lots of fun until their seddime, and then there would be more or less pleading to go home, in lieu of which they would go to sleep and have to be carried or half-dragged home.

Here and there was a family that kept a fiddle and didn't object to dancing, even if they didn't allow "frolicking," which meant a rough-and-ready time.

Here's a chap who has been there, many a time.

* * * * *

Dear Quiet Observer—I hope in your discussion of the old songs you will not lose sight of the old dances. Eh? I mean the dances of not so very long ago. Indulged in whenever the youth of a community could get together and engage a fiddler.

Yes, I said fiddler. They have orchestras nowadays, and the terpsichorean affairs are soirees, hops, fetes and the like. The music is like the figures—sort of technical and perfunctory like.

Oh, the old dances were the real thing; they stirred the blood. And they would appeal to us yet if we dared admit it. For instance, take a show at the opera house: If a dance is given as part of the play, a stately minuet may win applause from its sublime art and grace, but to catch right hold of the audience, and win approbation from orchestra to roof, what do they give? A Virginia reel. There is a dance to make the birds sing. It is the acme of enjoyment and discreet abandon, and echoes a ripple of laughter from the days of wholesome youth.

And how the lassies used to curtsey and pirouet to the good old time of "Money Musk." Then there were St. Cloud's reel and the square dances, and those who could learn would do the varsouvienne, the schottische and the round waltz. Why, I remember when the idea of reversing in a waltz was looked upon as treason, but it was soon accepted, and followed by the Boston dip, the glide, the two-step et al, until the old waltz has disappeared forever.

The modern dances may serve as "functions," but they will ever lack the ginger and life of the old "all hands 'round" and "promenade eight."

OLD GROUCH.

Wonder if things are that way in the country now? But, then, the country can never become city-fied, for it isn't built that way. However, the young bloods may be assuming city airs, wearing tailor-made clothes, and creasing their trousers.

Did you ever have yours creased with a hickory sprout? It wasn't necessary to take them to a tailor to have it done—your pap could do the trick all right while you waited, and without taking them off. You may not have appreciated the creasing at the time, but at this distance you may not only perceive the fitness of it, but realize its real value.

They do say that country girls are growing partial to city beaus, but it may only be a rumor. Of course, there are some among them who are liable to get struck on a pretty boy with rings on his fingers and glass studs in his shirt, but there are others, and let us hope there are many others. The country can't spare its best girls, and the city can't be depended upon to treat them right.

Besides, the best girls are needed right where they are, for it is from there the city is drawing its best blood, its rarest talent, its very life—the men who make it.

No doubt many of these girls think they are cutting no figure worth while, but some day, when they see their boys leading the procession, they will be glad that they lived, and the world will be glad they lived, and heaven will be glad—so glad that it will welcome them to its highest joys.

Short Campaigns.

If the time between national convention and election were the only time when public questions are discussed, we should be in favor of having a long campaign, but the discussion of political issues is going on all the time, every month and every day of the year. The long campaign is a disturber; a waste of good time and valuable money, and of much energy recklessly misapplied.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Talked of in New York

GEORGE C. JENKS.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—While Saratoga is thronged with visitors from New York and other cities, it is a fact that many run down for Sunday. There is amusement in Saratoga on the first day of the week, but the regular New Yorker does not like to be away from home on Sunday. He says he likes to go to his own church. In many cases this is true, but in many others it is his club, or a few hours at the seashore, or even the sober comfort of his own home, which brings him down the river on a night boat or train, with his family by his side, when he possesses one. It has been a common thing today to hear people ask each other: "Is that you? Thought you were in Saratoga?" So they were—yesterday. But it is not such a far cry from the famous spa to Manhattan, especially for people who do not have to count the cost of transportation. It seems, from what returning folk say, that Victor Herbert and his orchestra are the most delightful feature of Saratoga life this summer. Even the races are not of more general interest, while the informal "hops" in the hotels attract only the younger portion of the community, who do not care for music except as an adjunct to dancing. But the majority of those who are at Saratoga now give their close and respectful attention to the Pittsburgher's music, and they are pleased to say that better music never was heard at the springs. This, among other pleasant fragments of news, was handed out in Manhattan today. There will be a general rush Saratogawards early in the morning, although a large proportion of the restless New Yorkers departed tonight.

Supported by His Nerve.

The possibility of Robert A. Ammon having been concerned in some way with Daniels & Co., the bankers who were raided the other day, is still canvassed here. Ammon, calm and debonair, as usual, says nothing, as he waits in the tombs to be carried off to Sing Sing. The superb nerve of the ex-Pittsburgher is one of the wonders of the day down here.

The Tell-Tale Hotel Register.

One can read an interesting lesson of the progress people make in social amenities by noticing the way in which entries are made on hotel registers. At one of the large hotels here yesterday were four entries, reading as follows: "Reuben Jones and Lady," "George Brown and Wife," "Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Wilson" and "Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Berkeley." The easy transition from the elaborate vulgarity of the backwoods, where it is customary to refer to one's wife as "lady," to the sober and well-bred simplicity of "Mr. and Mrs.," which belongs to a cultured community, drew a group of amused idlers about this register at intervals all day.

Pittsburghers Together on the Road.

Joseph C. Breil has been engaged as musical director for Sidney R. Ellis' company, of which A. L. Wilson is the star. As both Mr. Breil and Mr. Ellis are well-known Pittsburghers, the fact of their joining hands to tour the country this winter is of some passing interest.

Who Wants a Home?

George W. Beavers, the postoffice official who has been indicted for irregularities, and who will be arrested if ever he crosses the East river into Brooklyn, does not think he will be able to live again in Brooklyn in comfort for a long time, so he has offered his home at Borough Park, which is one of the new residence districts near Flatbush, for sale. Perhaps the United States district attorney could interfere with the sale, but Beavers does not think so.

Proud of His Ship.

The big North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II. is lying in her berth on the Hoboken side of the Hudson river. With her four enormous smokestacks and generally impressive appearance, she attracts the attention of everyone moving up and down the river. She is not a curiosity to the regular residents of New York, but there are always strangers enough passing up and down the river, especially on the railroad ferryboats, to make her an object of particular interest. Her captain says she behaves as easily and obediently as any ship that comes into New York harbor. He is very proud of her—as well he may be.

Chasing "Yeggs."

"Yegg men" are coming into town in such numbers that the police are necessarily active. The believe have been working the country fairs and circuses, but the cool weather has made business bad for the last few days, and they are in New York to spend some of the money they made earlier in the summer. The average "yegg" loves Manhattan. He does not choose the pleasant part of it for society—that is, what ordinary people would call the pleasant part of town. He goes to the lower East Side, and mixes with the "Cherry Hill gang," the "Five Points gang," and other delectable elements. He is not averse to turning a trick in town if he can do it successfully, but, as his line is usually "sneaking" he is a little wary of the police in New York. Every day the police are rounding up a few "yeggs," and the feeling must be gaining ground among these nomadic lawbreakers that the metropolis is not healthful for them.

Old, But a Good Fighter.

Hugh McLaughlin, Democratic leader over in Brooklyn, and who has earned the critical contempt of "Big Bill" Devery because he wears a silk hat, has a full-length page picture of himself in one of the evening papers. McLaughlin takes little notice of Devery's animadversions. In fact, he affects not to know that the "Big Chief" is on earth. The Brooklyn boss has controlled Democratic politics on that side of the river for a generation or two, and when he says anything "it goes." He has made his money in the municipal business, and seems to have plenty of it. He is an old man now, but is as ready a fighter as ever he was 30 years ago.

Milk Supply of Cities.

The close relations of milk supply to infant mortality in the cities and to the health of the adult population naturally calls for the closest surveillance on the part of health authorities and inspectors. Singularly enough, it appears to require an epidemic of disease or an unusual spasm of public protest to secure a complete overhauling of the sources of milk supply and a thorough inspection of the implements and methods of transportation. The wide area from which a city's milk supply is drawn, together with the numerous channels of transportation, makes thorough inspection a very difficult matter, especially when the force provided by a city is uniformly inadequate. In spite of these difficulties, however, a marked advance has been made in the character and healthfulness of the milk supply of most cities and in the methods of handling it.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Cuban War Claims.

According to Gen. Gomez, who heads the committee which has made out a list of the Cuban soldiers entitled to pay under the recent act, about 50,000 men will be on the roll. The pay for these ranges from $20,000 for Gomez himself, as commander of the army, down to $900 or $1,000 for the privates. The compensation for the privates, it appears, is rated at $1 for each day of service.

Here is a chance for trouble for the republic. The $35,000,000 loan, even if it be subscribed in full, will not go more than half way toward meeting this exorbitant demand for compensation to the so-called liberators of Cuba. The real liberators of Cuba, of course, were the American soldiers, who received only half the compensation demanded by the Cuban alleged fighters for independence. It is probable that Gomez never had on his list at any one day between the time when the rebellion started, in February, 1895, and the day when the Americans stepped in and freed the island, any more than 3,000 or 4,000 men. Of course, if any considerable part of this 50,000 are compelled to go without their $900 or $1,000 pay, or if the amount is cut to a lower figure, there is a chance for trouble for Palma's government. A rising could easily be started against the new regime on an issue like this.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Cuban committee on the pay of the army has an unquestionable right to propose a payment of $50,000,000 or $300,000,000 to the veterans of the army of the revolution. The wisdom of its proposal of such liberal terms as those submitted is decidedly open to doubt. The finding of the committee is a matter for regret if not for condemnation. Its action is not necessarily final and binding upon the congress, which must make the appropriation. The liberality of the report of the committee may fall of confirmation, and hopes that have been raised unduly and unwisely may encounter disappointment, if they do not lead to outspoken dissatisfaction.

The proposal is unbusinesslike and not a little absurd. The United States pays its fighting men $13 per month. Tommy Atkins gets his shilling a day. The soldiers of Latin-American revolutionary armies get what they can, and very often that is either nothing or very close to nothing. Cuba's gallant warriors are to get $1 a day for services whose continuity or whose genuineness is most difficult of establishment. If Cuba had barrels of money, it would be open to her to scatter it among some or all of her people in any way that she saw fit and proper. To burden the island, under its present conditions, with an enormous debt, or even with a large debt and a floating scrip obligation, little short of inexcusable folly, and it is much to be hoped that the Cuban congress will be wiser than the Gomez committee.—New York Sun.

Cuban patriotism certainly came high. In fact, it apparently is to cost some $60,000,000. That claims so monstrous should be allowed and Cuba burdened with an enormous debt, if she can get anybody to lend her the money, and that public opinion in Cuba should apparently accept the performance as a matter of course, sufficiently discloses the blunder of the United States in foregoing the just reward of our expenditure of blood and treasure in the war against Spain. The gift of liberty which we made to Cuba has been construed into a privilege to plunder her people.

That Cuba cannot endure the weight of so huge a mortgage, that sooner or later the United States will have to intervene and stand sponsor for the debt which Cuban "patriotism" is creating for personal profit, is perfectly clear. That is what we are getting for freeing Cuba in a sentimental style instead of according to the dictates of common sense. The process is profitable for the Cuban "patriots," but will be rather expensive for American taxpayers, who ultimately will foot the bills.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The recommendation of the Gomez committee that the Cuban army of liberation receive, as back pay for services rendered, the sum of $50,000,000 (an average of $1,000 for each of the 50,000 men on the padded army roster) would be extravagant and absurd even if the insular treasury were overflowing. To meet the payment the Cuban people, the most of whom are poor farmers or plantation hands, would be obliged to incur an indebtedness of $40 per capita—a crushing burden for a nation still suffering from the effects of a long and devastating war. The highfaluting notions of the committee give one an idea of the sort of government which would have been established at Havana if Gomez and his tribe had whipped the Spaniards. The Cuban nation has reason for congratulating itself that the victory was not won unaided, and that under the steadying influence of the American military administration the more conservative elements of Cuba obtained control of affairs.—Philadelphia Record.

+ + + +

The Cuban revolutionary soldiers will hardly cut a respectable figure in the eyes of the world by playing the part of Shylock in the matter of their claim against the Cuban government and people. That these men deserve some pecuniary reward for their services may be admitted, but their reputation for patriotism will suffer unless they proportion their demands to the ability of their country to raise and spare the cash.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

H. W. LEGLEITNER ELECTED MARSHAL OF THE BUILDING TRADES DIVISION

President of the Organization Unanimously Made Chief Officer of These Marchers.

POSITIONS IN LINE ASSIGNED

Thomas R. McDonald Appointed Adjutant General and W. J. Wagner Chief of Staff—Labor Day Parade Committees Are Busy.

Henry W. Legleitner.

Delegates of the building trades organizations met yesterday afternoon in the Building Trades' council hall, No. 223 Fourth avenue, elected a marshal for the building trades and arranged the formation of the division.

E. A. Maginn, chief marshal of the parade, presided. The first business considered was the electing of the marshal, which resulted in the unanimous selection of Henry W. Legleitner, president of the Building Trades' council. He was formerly business agent of the ornamental iron workers, and resigned that position during the labor carnival held on the Exposition grounds. He was instrumental in bringing about a settlement of the wage dispute a month ago.

Mr. Legleitner was given the privilege of appointing his aids. He selected T. R. McDonald, business agent of the painters, as adjutant general, and W. J. Wagner as chief of staff.

Following the election of the marshal was the arrangement of the positions of the trades in the division. It resulted as follows:

1—Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers.
2—Marble and Mosaic Workers.
3—Steam Fitters and Steam Fitters' Helpers.
4—Journeymen Plumbers.
5—Cement Finishers' and Helpers' union.
6—Hoisting Engineers.
7—Tuck Pointers and Front Cleaners' union.
8—Marble Workers and Helpers.
9—Electrical Workers.
10—Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers.
11—Building Trades Laborers' union.
12—Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' National alliance.
13—Bricklayers' and Masons' International union.
14—Carpet Layers.
15—Stationary Engineers.
16—National Stone Masons' union.
17—Hardwood Floor Layers.
18—Elevator Constructors.
19—Ornamental and Architectural Housesmiths.
20—Metal Weather Strip Workers.
21—Hod Carriers.
22—Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners.
23—Art Glass Workers.
24—Tile Layers and Helpers.
25—Stone Cutters.
26—Slate and Tile Roofers.
27—Composition Roofers.
28—Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.
29—Operative Plasterers.
30—Gas and Electrical Fitters' association.

The structural iron workers, which are classed as belonging to this division, will lead the parade, being awarded that honor on account of the strike last spring.

The executive committee will meet tomorrow evening. The committee on sports and prizes will meet Wednesday in the office of Secretary William J. Kelley, room No. 3 Kuhn building, Diamond street and Cherry alley. On Friday the general committee will meet.

The Brotherhood of Carpenters has selected the uniform to be worn on Labor day. It consists of a black Fedora hat, white collar, black tie, white shirt waist and black trousers. The painters will turn out in silk hats and carry canes.

ALL WORKERS TO UNITE WITH ONE GREAT BODY

Every Tradesman in Western Pennsylvania to Be Included—Plan in Operation in New York Finds Great Favor Here.

The move on foot to bring all the skilled workmen throughout Western Pennsylvania into one organization, as was exclusively announced in The Gazette several weeks ago, is assuming such shape that it is expected to be effected within the next few days. The plan is to consolidate the Building Trades council, the Iron City Central Trades council and the United Labor league. The organization is to be sectional, that is, all building trades will belong to one part of the organization, the iron and steel workers not engaged in building in another, the miners in another, and the miscellaneous trades in another. The system is the same as that of a similar organization in New York, which has five sections, known as the five bodies of workingmen.

The move took an impetus yesterday during a meeting of delegates from labor unions throughout Western Pennsylvania to transact business relating to the Labor day demonstration. After this business was finished the subject of organizing the new council was taken up. Several addresses were made, and the speakers reported that their unions were in favor of the plan.

It was brought out at the meeting that the Iron City Central Trades council had already taken action, that it was in favor of the move and agreed to support it. It was also brought out that the proposition had been outlined to the Building Trades council. That body agreed to support the move should the carpenters withdraw from the Iron Central Trades council. This would be brought about by the new organization, which would put the carpenters in the same division as all trades affiliated with the Building Trades council. This places the council on record as in favor of the new organization.

The bricklayers, who have one of the largest organizations in the city are affiliated with the United Labor league. Recently they started to bring into one body all trades engaged in the shell work of buildings. Committees from the trades involved have the matter in charge, and expect soon to form the organization. In the new organization, this would be included in the section of building trades. The structural iron workers, which number over 2,500, have already agreed to enter the new structural trades council.

The miners are also in favor of affiliating with a central body that includes all workmen, and the plasterers, who have no affiliation, are in favor of the move.

According to the plans, each section will select a committee of nine members. When any disputes arise, no matter whether about wages or conditions, this committee will make an effort to settle it with the manufacturers or contractors. Failing to effect a settlement, the question will be placed in the hands of the committeees of all sections. Should they fail to reach an agreement with the employers, the dispute will be placed in the hands of a board of arbitration of disinterested persons.

The principal object is to prevent strikes and lock-outs. No local union will be permitted to strike without the sanction of the entire organization, and then all local unions will join in the fight.

TRACTION LINES LOSE BIG MONEY

County Detective Bureau Keeps Many Visitors Away from Suburban Districts.

DANGEROUS TO BE DISORDERLY

One Trolley Route's Receipts Cut Down $50 Every Sunday—District Attorney Haymaker Pleased With His Force. Says They Are Doing Good Work.

The establishment of the new county detective bureau has had an effect that was not contemplated when District Attorney John C. Haymaker conceived the idea. It has caused loss to the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

The riot at West Liberty, which resulted in the death of two men and the wounding of several others, furnished the immediate reason for establishing the bureau, although the district attorney had long contemplated such a move. On that Sunday there were at least 600 persons out watching the ball game that was being played. At least 500 of them had paid a nickel to the traction company to ride out to West Liberty, and of course they had to pay 5 cents to get back. According to one of the employes, whose story has been verified, the Sunday revenues of the West Liberty traction line has fallen off $50. The regular Sunday receipts used to run from $217 to $225, but since the fatal Sabbath the highest revenue on the first day of the week has been $175, the usual Sunday receipts being only about $165.

Ball Players Warned.

The county detectives have been making regular visits to West Liberty, and while they would probably not interfere with a well-conducted ball game, former visitors to the locality know that the free and easy discipline that prevailed is a thing of the past.

Residents of West Pittsburgh have complained to the district attorney of the conduct of the Sunday ball players in their neighborhood. They said they did not object to the ball playing, particularly, but they did object to the language that offended the ears of decent persons, and might, besides, lead to breaches of the peace. Four detectives were sent out yesterday. There was a good deal of blaspheming going on, and the managers or promoters of the game were told that that sort of thing must cease; that orderly amusements would not be interfered with, but that if the cursing and swearing and disorder did not stop the games would.

"The work of the detectives has been very satisfactory," said Mr. Haymaker yesterday. "There has been no public disturbance since they began their duties, while previously there was a great deal.

Deterrent to Crime.

"The officers travel about every Sunday, going to points where trouble is likely to occur. On pay days at the mines and railroad construction camps one or two, or more, county officers are always on hand. They also travel about the country, and their appearance is getting to be pretty familiar. This has operated to keep down disorder, just as the presence of a policeman or the knowledge that he is probably somewhere about helps to preserve the peace in the city.

"I ascribe the prevalence of good order largely to the fact that the presence of the officers has tended to keep away undesirable characters from points where people gather on Sunday in the rural districts. The fact that there have been few arrests is, of course, no criterion to go by. We have no roll of honor on which a man gains a place by making frequent arrests. The bureau was organized to prevent disturbances and to catch the perpetrators of crime. The officers are proving their aptitude for the first, and, I venture to say, knowing the men as I do, that when it comes to show what they can do in running down and capturing criminals they will prove themselves efficient."

fall fashions

Whenever it so happens that a store has accomplished ends which entitle it to distinction, it is fully warranted in asserting its claim.

Therefore, we this day proclaim our absolute leadership with regard to Ladies' Ready-to-wear Gowns for Fall 1903, based upon our own knowledge of the situation corroborated by the experience of others not interested.

Invitation is extended to inspect the collection—an exhaustive representation of the style of the day in its highest form—the long Coat Suit in masterly variations.

Paris was slow to adopt the long coat for complete gowns, clinging with tenacity born of arrogant assertiveness to the shorter effects, but the consensus of opinion overwhelmed their prejudices and today long coat suits are a perfect rage, and will be for months to come.

The store's strength lies in the extent of variety now ready for your choosing—and the excellence thereof—every first-class maker having been put upon his mettle to produce something distinctive, and it is to these—the variety of fashionable fabrics, and effective modifications as to detail—ranging from $15.00 to $75.00—that your attention is now directed.

The skirts are both dress and walking length.

silk waist suits

In these also we promise you a wealth of satisfaction.

A hundred handsome, new Satin Foulard Shirt Waist Suits have just come to us, to be sold at the nominal price of $8.50 a suit.

Black grounds and various shades of Blue with White pin dots and polka dots all over and in clusters.

This is a very remarkable offering—fine, rich, elegant, high-class, new Silk Gowns in the latest style, at an almost ridiculously low price.

Handsome checked and line striped Taffeta and Louisine Silk Shirt Waist Suits, beautifully made, $9.50.

Sale—white goods, 50,000 yards at 10, 15, 20 and 25c—good, desirable kinds at prices that will make as great, if not the greatest, August business ever the store had.

Lot fine Mercerized Picote spot, striped White Goods, 25c—choice goods.

Lot of double width (full yard wide) medium heavy white cord P. K.'s, 15c.

Lot of fine white Canvas Etamine—really a fine close mesh Oxford, almost as pretty as voile—for suits, 20c.

Lot of extra good Canvas Oxfords—medium size square mesh, 20c.

Lot of 32 inch White striped Madras, 10c.

Lot pretty and good Lace and Corded White Goods, 10c.

Some choice double width White Brocade Oxfords, 25c.

This is a large and important deal—white goods—and of the better kinds.

Understand these White Goods are not half price—as desirable white goods don't have to be sold that way—but enough under price, for us to buy all there was of the lots—even on a tight money market.

White Goods never were more fashionable—wanted now and will be all Fall and Winter—and this is your opportunity to get them to your financial advantage.

Lot very fine White lengthwise cord, soft finish P. K.'s—with red or black line stripe, 15c.

2 cases Paris Voiles just in—46 inches wide, $1.00 and $1.25—Exquisite texture and latest paris shades.

We own them on the right price basis.

We're willing to work for a small profit.

Do more business and make more money in the end that way.

If you buy new and want the choicest shades and investigate, the quality and width will convince you that you can save a quarter a yard.

Dark Oxford or Black Gray Cheviottes—too many of this high cost imported all wool one—56 inches wide—$2.00 original value—to be sold out now at 75c.

The lot is not large, but the goods are superb—and will bring business—even in August.

Lot imported Novelties—genuine $1.50 goods at $1.00—fine all wool taffeta weave—stripes and plaids—Clan Tartan colorings—with blocks and spots of color—fine goods—nobby styles for young girls' school suits.

This lot will be a trade producer—and those who get the goods will save money.

American Woolens—56 inches wide—striped—crash finish—neat and good stylish things for skirts, 75c—dollar goods is all they are—but they're good ones at 75c.

checked silks

Fresh, new things—smart fashionable goods—price and value so important you'll be deeply interested when you see the silks.

Small Black and White, and Blue and White solid and single and double line check Taffetas—fine and extra heavy quality, 27 inches wide, 85c.

The width of these is important, but not near as much so as the richness of the silks at the price.

Purchase and Sale—new, fresh lot 75 cent neat Broche Shantungs—self dots and figures, 50c—quarter a yard off such goods means a lot more than one would think, at the mere reading of it.

GRATIFIED WITH LOCAL CONDITIONS

John Mitchell, President of the United Mine Workers, Spent a Day in Pittsburgh.

John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers, spent several hours in Pittsburgh yesterday. He came from Wilkesbarre, and was on his way to Chicago in the interest of his organization. Most of the time spent in the city was occupied with the local officials, becoming familiar with the conditions existing in this field.

Mr. Mitchell left the city over the Pennsylvania railroad, going on the 7:30 p. m. train. While at the Union station he spoke very freely of the conditions of his organization. He said the anthracite miners have nearly recovered from the effects of their recent struggle. Many of the families were thrown into poverty during the great strike, but since then they have had plenty of work. Regarding the Irwin field, he said he is much gratified at the result obtained during the past few weeks. The organizers have surpassed all expectations in getting the miners into the union. He claims it will not be long until the Irwin field is as well organized as any other coal mining district in the United States.

According to his assertion, peace again reigns in the Wheeling and Kanawha districts. Since the settling of the strike in the West Virginia field the men have been given all the work they could do, and at reasonable wages.

TO KEEP POLES DOWN.

McKeesport Council Indignant at Alleged Illegal Action of Telephone Company.

The McKeesport council will have before it tonight the resolution forbidding the Pittsburgh & Allegheny Telephone Company from proceeding with the erection of poles, the resolution having passed one reading at the last meeting.

The ordinance granting the franchise contains the provision that the plans were to be submitted to the street committee of council before permits could be issued, but City Engineer Thomas White issued the permits anyhow—illegally, council maintains. That is the ground on which council intends to stop the work.

John G. Splane, president of the company, prefers to consider that council is wrong, because it has a theory that the lines should have been in operation within one year from January 31, 1902, whereas the time limit is mentioned in only one place in the contract, and there it is stated that 15 free telephones must be installed and in working order by that time. Mr. Splane claims the right to go ahead with the work and grants council only the right to sue for damages for loss of the telephone service.

ROGER O'MARA STOPPED AN ESCAPING PRISONER

Former Superintendent Always Has Time to Assist an Officer in Trouble.

Former Supt. of Detectives Roger O'Mara yesterday assisted one of Supt. McTighe's officers in making an arrest at Forbes and Magee streets. Peter Tola and Asaac Lazor, Italians, were fighting near Magee street, and had been placed under arrest by Officer James Finnigan. Both Italians were larger than the officer, and as Roger O'Mara was riding by in a street car the Italians broke away. The policeman confined his attention to Lazor. Tola was taking down the street as fast as he could run. At Magee street O'Mara jumped off the car and Tola, not knowing the former officer, ran into his arms. O'Mara took Tola to the box and had him sent to the police station.

"You know I could not see a policeman in trouble without giving him help," said O'Mara. "I will always have time for that."

"Mr. O'Mara, would it not take up a great deal of your time to help all the policemen who are in trouble now?"

"Oh, those are family affairs; I could not lend any aid there," replied the former superintendent.

Took a 90-Day Vacation.

Maggie ...eal, Mary Hill, Cora Smith and F. Ferguson, were arrested at Second avenue and Try street on a charge of disorderly conduct. They were each fined $50 and costs or 90 days to the workhouse, as they are all well known in police circles and have appeared on recent occasions before the magistrate. They all took the 90 days.

BUGS CHASED THE STROLLERS

Atlantic City Was at the Mercy of Insects for a Time Yesterday.

BELONG TO UNKNOWN SPECIES

Guard on the Beach Rescued Five Persons Just as They Were About to Be Swept Away—Other Happenings of the Day.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Young's Ocean Pier,
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 9.

Atlantic City was attacked by a peculiar pest this afternoon that caused everybody to be uneasy until it was discovered that the insects which settled over everything did not bite. Late in the afternoon millions of brownish insects, about the size of a fuligrown housefly and resembling in shape a wasp, settled down on the city, filling the exchanges of hotels that were not guarded by screen doors. They drove guests from the porches and even filled the trolley cars, causing the passengers to make rather hasty exits. The pests remained an hour and then disappeared. Walt McDougall, the cartoonist, who is also an authority on American entomology, secured a number of specimens, but he was unable to identify them. He will send specimens to the Smithsonian institute at Washington.

Guard Rescues Five People.

Life Guard Penny had his hands full just before noon today at his station at the foot of New York avenue. A young girl and two women who were bathing waded out too far and were swept from their feet. Two men who were bathing near went to the assistance of the women and were themselves caught and unable to return. Penny saw the predicament of the five and went to their assistance with a buoy and succeeded in bringing all safely to shore.

A Pittsburgh Euchre.

A company of Pittsburgh visitors at one of the St. Charles place hotels, spent Saturday evening in euchre, to which the participants were restricted to residents from Pittsburgh or its immediate vicinity. The trophies offered as prizes were made in Pittsburgh. The music was furnished by an orchestra from the same city. Those gathered about the tables in the two hours' contest were W. E. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Carpenter, J. S. Lee, W. G. Hughes, Miss A. M. Benham, Miss Madelaine Barry, Miss Nellie Locklin, Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Trimble, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Benner, George H. Stave, R. C. Pfeiffer, F. Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Darragh, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Porterfield, James D. Tate, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Greeman, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brener, Fremont Laughlin, Mrs. H. J. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Beck, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bates, Irwin Hollander, W. H. Leahy, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grunder, P. A. Hollerbach.

Diamonds Are Plentiful.

One Pittsburgh woman has been a eynosure of the admiration of many women who have a penchant and love for jewels. She is one of many score of women, who make the evening turnout on the promenade sparkle under the electric lights. A sunburst of diamonds of more than ordinary size is one of the prominent adornments of her evening toilet, and a half dozen rings set with precious stones, glitter on a single finger. The diamond beauties are numerous. A cursory glance over the moving throngs reveals a blaze of jewels. The wealth on open display may amount up to $1,000,000 or more, and is an enjoyable feature to the average person who takes an interest in gems and the fancy settings in which they are wrought. No season has brought together larger collections or more beautiful workmanship. The wearers come from no particular section, although now that the leaven of Pittsburghers is in the boardwalk throng, it has been noticed that the display has been increasing in proportion to the additions from that rich portion of the Keystone state.

Yesterday a Tight Day.

Mayor Stoy's ban upon Sunday amusements had a decided effect. Only one man attempted to defy it. Manager Boyce of the "Old Mill," but he was promptly placed under arrest and his establishment closed. Rather than giving the visitors any discomfiture, the stopping of amusement enterprises appeared to have a certain effect and few complaints were heard. On the piers nothing but the best known selections of sacred music were played, possibly because it was thought the city's sleuth would not be able to identify sacred music of the less popular order. Chief of Police Eldridge personally visited the amusement resorts to see that the mandate was obeyed.

To Give a Pastel Lecture.

Vernon Churchill, the famous globe trotter, is scheduled to give an exhibition on Youngs pier. Mr. Churchill will stand upon an elevated dias and in the finest French pastels, will exhibit scenes illustrative of his trip around the world. Thousands have read the announcement card and are awaiting with interest the arrival of Mr. Churchill, whose announced exhibition is considered to be one of the most novel ever anticipated in this city.

ASK NEW STREET AT CITY'S COST

Twenty-Eighth Ward Residents' Two Grievances Against P., V. & C. Railroad.

SAY A STREET WAS CAPTURED

Object to Whistling of Locomotives, Which Makes Night Hideous—Will Appeal to Councils for a New Thoroughfare and Abatement of Nuisance.

Many property owners of the Twenty-eighth ward held a meeting last night and ventilated two grievances they have against the Pittsburgh, Virginia & Charleston Railway Company. Both complaints are of long standing. One is the fact that, as alleged, the railroad took Manor street, between South Fifteenth and South Seventeenth streets, some years ago, without the consent of the city authorities, and the second is that the locomotive engines of the railroad whistle so loudly and so frequently as to drive sleep from the eyes of residents for blocks around. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the St. Adelbert parochial school, in South Fifteenth street. Charles H. Baumbach presided and Nicholas P. Abel was secretary.

Several years ago the railroad made a big fill, which occupied a portion of Manor street, and now there are no streets running east and west between Sarah street and the tracks of the railroad. The citizens of that district feel that the city should indemnify them for what was characterized as "shameful treatment in the past," and that the city should open and improve Mary street from South Fifteenth to South Seventeenth streets, without cost to the property owners. All present agreed to that proposition, but nobody seemed to know how the matter should be brought before the proper authorities. Finally, however, it was decided to refer the question to a committee composed of Lewis Kimmel, Jacob Nagel, Frank Werling, John Sobczak and Lawrence Starzynski. Select Councilman L. P. Snyder will be requested to add the district to get what it wants.

Among those who spoke at the meeting were the Rev. Father Christopher of St. Michael's Catholic church, John Kellar, Jacob Nagel, Lewis Kimmel, George Egler and William Miller.

Besides trying to get another street put through, the committee will see what can be done toward abating the whistling nuisance, for it was declared that the locomotive whistles made night as well as day hideous.

THE DEATH ROLL

William Nicholas Pardoe.

William Nicholas Pardoe, for more than 40 years an elder of the United Presbyterian church and a man widely known in religious circles, died yesterday morning at his residence in New Castle, Pa., after an illness of but four days. He was taken sick last Wednesday with convulsions and suffered much before death relieved him. He was 79 years of age and was born in Northumberland county. In early life he located in Mercer county, where he resided until 12 years ago, since when he has made his home in New Castle. He was a lifelong Republican and for many years held the office of squire in Mercer county. He was first made an elder in the Findley United Presbyterian church of Mercer county and was elected to the session of the Second United Presbyterian church of this city when he took up his residence here. He was married in 1849 to Miss Susan Barnes of Mercer, who survives him. The celebration of their fiftieth wedding anniversary here four years ago was the notable event of their joint lives. He also survived by six children, who are Mrs. Janet Martin of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Wallace H. Falls and Miss Elsie Pardoe of this city, Mrs. William Ellis, Mrs. Ida B. Pardoe of Mercer county and W. G. Pardoe of Oklahoma.

Mrs. Mary Loeb Bender.

Mrs. Mary Loeb Bender, wife of John Bender, died at her residence, No. 242 Maryland avenue, Millvale, yesterday morning at 4:40 o'clock, of consumption, after an illness of four months. She was 26 years old, and a native of Berlin, Germany. She was a member of St. Anthony's church of Millvale. She is survived by her husband and three children, Frank, John and Mary. Funeral services will be held in St. Anthony's church, Millvale, tomorrow morning, and the interment will be made in St. Anthony's cemetery.

Capt. Scott Heatherington.

Capt. Scott Heatherington, one of the best known rivermen along the Ohio, died at his home at Bellaire, O., yesterday. He was 58 years old. He was a son of Capt. Jacob Heatherington, who is still living at the age of 90. A sister is Miss Ude Heatherington. Capt. Heatherington was born in Belmont county, O., and was for many years in command of the Ellen H. During recent years he has managed the Heatherington coal works near Bellaire. Six children survive.

Charles Colteryahn.

Charles Colteryahn, aged 52 years, died at his home, No. 2118 Sarah street, South Side, at 3:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was a member of Keystone lodge, No. 251, Robert Bloom encampment, No. 155, Ormsby Beneficial society and Odd Fellows Leidertafel. He will be buried from his late residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the interment will be made at St. Paul's cemetery.

Dr. George Johnston.

Dr. George Johnston died of a complication of diseases due to advanced age at his home in Connellsville, Pa., yesterday. He was 84 years old. He was born in Ohio, but went to Connellsville when a young man and resided there ever since. He had lived practically a retired life for the past 10 years. He is survived by five children, Mrs. James Minuth and George Johnston, both of Connellsville.

Obituary Notes.

Mrs. Emma Proctor died yesterday at 5 p. m. at her home, No. 18 Norman street, Allegheny. She is survived by her husband and one son. The funeral services will be held at the house tomorrow at 8 p. m.

John Cooper, a prominent farmer of Plainsgrove township, Lawrence county, Pennsylvania, is dead at his home. He was 38 years old and prominent in Democratic politics. His widow and one daughter survive.

Three Families Poisoned.

GREENSBURG, PA., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—Eight members of the family of Melvin Wagner of Pleasant Unity are seriously ill with typhoid fever. Their ailment is alleged to have had its origin in canned fruit purchased at a sale. The families of James Tarr and Wesley Company also bought fruit at the sale and it is reported that several members are ill with the disease. Physicians who examined the fruit say it was full of disease germs.

MAYOR HAYS COOS TO THE BABY NAMED IN HIS HONOR

Mayor William B. Hays has a namesake. He arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lorenzo, at No. 8 Wyoming street, Mt. Washington, on July 31. He will be christened next Sunday in the Church of St. Mary's of the Mount.

Mr. Lorenzo, who is superintendent of the Second district in the bureau of highways and sewers, yesterday gave a dinner in celebration of the arrival of William Brotten Hays Lorenzo. The guests were Mayor Hays, Director J. W. Clark of the department of charities, Select Councilman Peter Hermes, Councilman Harry Lamb and William J. Shore, Jr. The mayor was formally presented to his namesake and the blue-eyed infant was cooed to by the chief executive of the city. It is the first baby named in honor of the mayor and it starts life with a handsome bank account.

LATROBE IS READY FOR FIREMEN'S CONVENTION

Festivities Begin Tuesday Morning and Ten Thousand Visitors Are Expected.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

LATROBE, PA., Aug. 9.—The final arrangements have been completed for the big convention of the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's association, which will open here next Tuesday. Preparations have been made to entertain the largest crowd in the history of Latrobe, and from present indications the visitors will probably number 10,000 a day for the four days of the meeting. They will all be accommodated. Large refreshment booths with facilities for serving several hundred people have been erected in various quarters of the town.

Athletic and G. A. R. parks, together with the old baseball grounds, will be covered with camp tents, and cots will be secured from the national guard and erected on Monday. On the north side the work of arranging the camp grounds and getting up the tents for the Jeannette fire department is in progress. The equipment of the Connellsville and Beaver Falls fire departments arrived today.

The town is brilliantly decorated. A score of electric arches will span the principal streets. After the initial reception the convention proper will open on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in Doherty's hall, when a brief business session will be held. At 2 o'clock the delegates will meet and the address of welcome will be delivered by Col. George H. Sewell. The freedom of the city will be extended the guests by Burgess E. W. Blackburn.

In the afternoon there will be a trolley ride to Woodlawn park, followed by a ball in the evening. Business meetings will be held Wednesday morning and afternoon. They include the election of officers and the selection of the location of the next convention. In the evening there will be a band contest, fireworks and carnival. Thursday comes the big parade and distribution of prizes, $20 being given for the finest uniformed department, $20 for the largest number of uniformed men, $20 for the finest hose cart, and $20 for the best truck. The judges are John V. Toner, J. K. Griffith and J. C. Head. Among the officers of the association are C. F. Hyde of Evans City, W. A. Griffiths and Ed Berry, Greensburg; J. J. Gilloly, Homestead; Alexander Andrews, Etna; W. H. Sharrah, Braddock, and J. H. Steele, Wilkinsburg.

PERSONALS

"There is now an area of soft coal in New Mexico greater than the entire bituminous area of Pennsylvania," said R. K. Wilbur, a mining engineer of Santa Fe, who passed through here last night on the Pennsylvania limited en route to his home from England. "This may seem almost incredulous," he continued, "as Pennsylvania at this time is producing the greatest tonnage of bituminous coal in the world. However, however, the New Mexico is greater in expanse than the New England states, New York and Pennsylvania combined. The opportunities for developing coal in that territory are very great, although as yet the movement is in its infancy. Mr. Schwab must have overlooked New Mexico when he made the statement that within 20 years the visible supply of soft coal will have been exhausted. New Mexico will then step in with her vast fields and supply the deficiency. Naturally there will be an almost prevailing condition as to the quality of the coal as compared with that of Pennsylvania. I do not care to make comparisons or criticisms. It is sufficient to say that if the fields of Pennsylvania are exhausted there will be little ground for comparison."

"I am inclined to believe the reports that Edison is losing his sight, or rather his eyesight has been affected by X-rays," said C. E. Elliott, an electrical engineer of Philadelphia, last night at the Union station. "I have the honor of knowing the wizard, as he is called. I also know that he has been experimenting recently with the Roentgen rays and radium. It is my belief that the rods and cones of his eyes have been, in a measure, destroyed by the sudden changes in the magnetic field. His case, of course, is without parallel, because the Roentgen rays are a comparatively recent discovery, while not a great deal of experimenting has been done with radium."

"The coal developments along the Kanawha river," said Joseph Hartman of Clarksburg, W. Va., last night at the Henry, "are the greatest in the history of that section of the state." It is predicted that by the time the new railroad lines are opened they will not be able to care for more than 75 per cent of the coal produced. Clarksburg is to have a new industry of some sort. A tract of 50 acres of land has been purchased at Steelton two and one-half miles from Harrisburg and a tremendous plant will be erected. The Baltimore & Ohio railroad it is generally understood, will build a branch from Clarksburg to Steelton."

The Traffic club of Pittsburgh will hold a regular meeting tonight at the Hotel Henry.

Capt. White, a staff officer in charge of the Salvation Army in Western Pennsylvania, with headquarters in this city, has gone to West Virginia.

John R. McGinley went to Chicago last night.

Millers Grove Man Missing.

It was reported to the police yesterday by John M. Teets that George Myer, aged 35, had left Millers Grove on Saturday at 10:30 o'clock and had not been seen since. He left at that time to come to Pittsburgh to pay some bills at the Mercy hospital. As far as is known he never reached the institution. He was in a rig owned by Emil Nurnberger, a hotel man of Millers Grove. The police are making an effort to locate him.

BIBLE CLASS INCREASES.

More Pittsburghers in Attendance at the Grove City Meeting.

GROVE CITY, PA., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—The pulpits of all the local churches were occupied by visiting ministers today and crowded houses greeted the speakers at each service. The regular Sabbath addresses of the Bible school were made by Harlan P. Beach of New York, secretary of the student volunteer movement for foreign missions.

The increase in the membership of the school is steadily growing, the number enrolled yesterday bringing it above 200. Several more Pittsburghers arrived yesterday, the following having registered: Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Hamilton, Edgar McClelland, Mrs. James Hogg, Pittsburgh; the Rev. H. W. McCartney, the Rev. and Mrs. John A. Henderson, D. S. Thomson, Mrs. R. M. Duncan, the Rev. R. J. George, John Nelson, Mrs. Robert Curry, Mrs. Samuel McCann, Allegheny; the Rev. and Mrs. P. Atwell, Crafton; Miss Laura Heyden, Elizabeth; the Rev. J. S. Blaney, Glenfield; Miss V. Patterson, Idlewood, and the Rev. D. M. McClelland, Oakdale.

To Erect a Bank Building.

NEW CASTLE, PA., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—The Dollar Savings association of this city is having plans prepared by Architects S. W. & P. H. Foulk, for a new bank building, which is to be erected at Washington and Water streets, almost directly opposite the new Lawrence Savings and Trust Company block, which will be opened for business tomorrow. The Dollar Savings association's block will be called "Phirion" building. It is being planned very similar to the famous New York skyscraper. The site was recently purchased for $19,460 from the Dunn heirs.

NOTES OF NEARBY TOWNS.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—The annual reunion of the Welsh pioneers of this section will be held at Avon park on August 19.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—Bernard Loney, aged 14, jumped off a trolley car directly in front of another and was fatally injured.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—A deed for a new lot on which an addition to the Youngstown postoffice will be built was delivered to United States District Attorney J. J. Sullivan. The price paid was $3,000.

SHARON, PA.—The cornerstone of the House of Israel, the new Hebrew church, was laid with appropriate ceremonies. Addresses were made by Rabbi Ashinsky of Pittsburgh, S. J. Whitebridge of New Castle, and G. McKay of Sharon.

SHARON, PA.—James Ryan laid down beside the New Castle branch of the Erie railroad and a train struck him. His recovery is doubtful.

TREES IN PARK KILLED BY GASES

Smoke from Furnaces on the South Side and Second Avenue Held Responsible.

THOUSANDS TO BE UPROOTED

Honeysuckle Plants to Replace Trees Along the Bridle Paths—Only Hardiest Can Resist the Effects of Ore Dust. Bids to Be Asked for 5,000.

Thousands of trees in Schenley park are to be uprooted on account of a slow withering process caused by the attacks of gases from the furnaces of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company on the South Side and along Second avenue. George W. Burke, superintendent of parks, said yesterday that many valuable trees and shrubbery have been lost, and that in order to save the beauty of the park along the Junction railroad all of the affected trees and plants will be removed. The superintendent is prepared to ask for bids for 5,000 new trees, which will be planted next year.

Along the bridle paths for about three and one-half miles the choice trees planted by ex-Supt. William Falconer will be replaced by upright honeysuckle. This will be taken from the nurseries. The honeysuckle plants are about three years old, and Supt. Burke believes that they will be able to withstand the poison of the smoke and gases from the Monongahela valley. The cost of the new trees will range from 8 to 15 cents each.

"I do not know when we will be able to get enough money to make the purchase, although bids will be asked for just the same," said Burke yesterday. "The trees will be very young and will come from the eastern nurseries.

"By taking the honeysuckle plants from the nurseries we will have room for the new trees. Mr. Falconer tried all in his power to abate the smoke nuisance, as it is called, because he realized that the best trees would suffer. He found that only the hardiest specimens could live in the ore dust.

"We could get all sorts of trees and plants to take the place of the dead or dying ones, but the beauty of the park and the bridle paths must be first considered."

Transplanting of the chrysanthemum specimens at the Phipps conservatories, Schenley park, has been begun, and it is expected that the flowers this year will be up to the usual standard of former years. Florist Frazier, who has charge of the conservatories of H. C. Frick, visited the Phipps hot houses yesterday. He complimented Supt. Burke on the condition of the 'mums, saying that they are excellent specimens.

The attendance at Schenley and Highland parks yesterday showed a slight falling off from the previous Sunday on account of the threatening clouds of the morning. The zoo at Highland, as usual, proved the greatest attraction.

BLIND MOTHER'S TWO AFFLICTIONS

Youngest Child Drowns and She Cannot See the Body.

SWIMMERS LOSE THEIR LIVES

Leechburg Man Dies from Injuries Received While Alighting from a Train. Man Fell from Trestle and Was Killed.

In a modest little home in Lawrenceville lies the body of a young boy who was drowned yesterday afternoon. Bending over the body is a grief-stricken mother, grieving over two afflictions, one that her youngest child is cold in death and the other that she is totally blind and cannot see the dead boy's face.

The boy is Elmer Byers of No. 5403 Natrona alley. While in swimming alone in the Allegheny river off Fifty-sixth street yesterday afternoon he was seized with a cramp, and before aid arrived was drowned. Several companions who sat on the bank of the river watching the lad jumped in and secured his body. Elmer was dead. His body was taken to his home by his father, James Byers, and his brother Austin.

The news of the lad's drowning was broken gently to his blind mother, and she sorrowfully asked that she be led to his body. This was done, and all the balance of the day and well into the night she clung fondly to the body. The lad was employed by the Keystone Bridge Company. His father is a steel puddler in the Cresson steel works. The funeral will take place tomorrow.

The body of Rudolph Connelly, a railroad flagman, was found in the Monongahela river at Becks Run at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Connelly had been in swimming at Becks Run on Friday afternoon and was taken with cramps and drowned. A party had been searching for his body, but failed to locate it until yesterday. The body was removed to the morgue. Connelly was 22 years old. It is not known where his home is.

Joseph Dervel, aged 16 years, of the Brighton road, Allegheny, was drowned at 7 o'clock last night while in bathing in the Ohio river near Jacks run. The body was recovered shortly afterward.

Winfield C. Frank of Leechburg died early yesterday morning at the West Penn hospital from injuries received near his home on the Pittsburgh & Western railroad. He was alighting from a train and was caught under the wheels, having his legs and his right arm crushed. He was removed to the hospital, but died from shock before he received a surgeon's attention. He was employed as a mill worker; was 18 years old and single.

Peter Cordinio, a laborer at the National tube works, second avenue and Brady street, was so badly injured at the plant yesterday afternoon that he died at the Passavant hospital at 8 o'clock. He was working on a trestle in the mill when he lost his footing and fell. Little is known of him.

Fourteen Soldiers Arrested.

CANTON, O., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—Fourteen members of Company F, Eighth regiment, were arrested this afternoon and will appear in the mayor's court Tuesday to answer a charge of unlawfully shooting within the city limits. They have been holding target practice in the south part of the city every Saturday and Sunday and neighbors complained.

TRADE TO RUSSIA HAS INCREASED

Total Exports to Domain of Czar Has Increased 50 Per Cent.

IMPORTS TO US HAVE GROWN

Figures for the Entire Commerce for the Year Just Ended Are Larger Than at Any Time Within the Last Twenty Years.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Room 10, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 9.

Remarkable increase in commerce between the United States and Russia is noted in a statement given out today by the department of commerce and labor. In both exports to and imports from Russia, the figures for the year just ended are larger than at any time within the last 20 years, and the grand total of imports and exports combined is larger than any year in the history of our commerce with that country. The total exports to Russia in the year ending June 30, aggregated $17,003,812, about 50 per cent in excess of those of 1902.

Cotton, agricultural implements and manufactured iron and steel are the most important factors in the export trade. The large proportion of the exports to Russia go to the ports on the Baltic, and White seas. The total for the year of 1903 for Russia, on the Baltic and White seas was $13,390,570, to Russia on the Black sea $2,722,258, to Asiatic Russia $802,428 and to Russian China $681,756.

In the exports to ports on the Baltic and White seas, cotton predominates, the total of cotton shipped to those ports in 1902 being $750,000 in value, manufactures of iron and steel about $1,000,000, wheat flour over $500,000 and agricultural implements over $400,000.

To Russia on the Black sea the largest single item is agricultural implements, nearly $2,000,000. Iron and steel manufactures about $100,000 and manufactures of fibers over $100,000.

NEGRO MADE LIGHT OF A BULLET WOUND

Was Shot in Stomach at Bolivar, but Assured Nurse He Would Not Die.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

GREENSBURG, PA., Aug. 9.—"That hole's nothing, nurse. That was made with only a 32-caliber revolver. Why, I was with Roosevelt's Rough Riders at San Juan hill and got two Mauser bullets through my body. Don't you think I'm going to die. I'm a tough nigger from Virginia. That hole's nothing more than a scratch."

Badly wounded in the stomach by a bullet wound said to have been inflicted by Peter McPherson at Bolivar early this morning, Stephen Caloway, 51 years old, thus referred to his injury when brought to the Westmoreland hospital. The surgeons at the hospital say that he has a fighting chance for his life.

Caloway says that early this morning he went to the house of his washwoman to secure clean clothing. He alleges that McPherson was there and shot him. McPherson left Bolivar soon after he is alleged to have wounded the negro. Sheriff John P. Treecher was notified that the fugitive had been seen at Altoona. Caloway was employed by McMillan & Sons, Pennsylvania railroad contractors.

SARTO IS A MAN OF THE MASSES

The New Pope Is a Man Who Speedily Wins Hearts of Churchmen.

FEARS NOT ITALY'S POWER

Any Move of the Government to Harass Him Will Undoubtedly Result in the Discomfiture of the Royal Administration.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 9.—Among the priests attached to the church of St. Anthony of Padua, in this city, is Father Antonio Giuliano, who had a personal acquaintance with Pope Pius X., when he was patriarch of Venice. Father Giuliano talks most interestingly of the new head of the church. Among other things, he said:

"Cardinal Sarto, as priest, bishop and patriarch, above all things, was a church man. That is the characteristic which, perhaps more than anything, led to his election to the pontifical throne. The late Cardinal Parrochical, who was for many years regarded as the man most likely to succeed Leo, had he survived him, was a powerful and consistent friend of Sarto. The characters of the two men were similar in many respects, and the bond between them was further cemented by the fact that they were born in the same province. Each was the son of people of the soil, and each by his own talents, had risen to become a prince of the church.

"The new pontiff," continued Father Giuliano, "was prepared for his high office by the land of his birth. He came from a country which is fruitful and rich in religious and political history. Riese, where he was born, is in Venetian territory. In his election to the pontificate, the best traditions of the church are adhered to. The son of the prince and the son of the lowest born are one in the eyes of the church. The election of Pius X. means to freshadow better times for Italy, provided the spirit of peace and justice, which fills his mind and heart, is not circumvented by the enemies of the church. And, unfortunately, it appears that there are not a few who wish to do this.

Populace Will Support Him.

"What his political relations with the Italian government will be is a matter of conjecture. Pope Pius X. is an exceedingly popular man with the masses, and any move on the part of the government to harass him will result in the discomfiture of the royal administration.

"It has been announced that the Count Grimaldi, the mayor of Venice, has been forbidden to pay homage to the new pope under penalty of dismissal from office. This same thing was done by Premier Crispi, in 1888, when the duke of Toriori, then mayor of Rome, attended Pope Leo's Jubilee celebration in his official capacity. The Count Grimaldi is a warm admirer and close personal friend of the new pope, and it is safe to anticipate that he will attend the ceremony and pay homage to the new pontiff, despite any governmental prohibition.

"That the elevation of a man like the new pope will lead to many changes is to be expected, but that they will be of the radical character suggested by some of the cabled reports is preposterous. The government of Italy, which has withstood the changes of 1,900 years, is not likely to enter upon radical lines at this time. Such changes as will be made are those in harmony with the established laws of the church and such others as may be the outcome of the new pontiff's character.

Truly a Man of the People.

"He is a simple, democratic man, and is devoid of all ostentation in his private life. Simplicity and modesty have been the salient characteristics of the new pope all his life.

"While he was a patriarch of Venice he was always poor, although the income from the office is large. He was continually giving away his money to the poor. It is only a few years ago, during a winter of great hardship, when the city poor were more numerous than ever, and the means to help them were not plentiful, that Cardinal Sarto, after having given away all his money, threw his costly sacredotal ring, a gift of wealthy Italians when he was elevated to the office, into the general fund for the poor. It is little things like this which best tell the character of the new pope.

"He is learned, profoundly so, but he has never made public displays of it. He is a powerful reader of character and his simple manners ingratiate into the good will of all with whom he comes in contact. He is of medium size, about five feet nine, of robust build, but not portly. His hair is silvery white, and his face is full and has a benign expression.

Father Giuliano is about 50 years old, and of a strikingly handsome appearance. He is here on missionary work among Italians. He is a master of theology, a fact that is indicated by the letters D. T. M. after his name. The Royal Military Order of Our Lady of Mercy, to which he belongs, has no members in this country. The order was founded in 1218, for the redemption of slaves and men taken captive during the crusades. Father Giuliano is an accomplished preacher, and has made many friends since he came here last spring. He will remain here until he is sent elsewhere by the head of his order in Rome.

CORONATION OF POPE PIUS X. WAS A GLITTERING SPECTACLE

knelt and kissed the foot of the pontiff. He then presented in a firm voice the wishes and greetings of the chapter of St. Peter's, which he said "offer an act of obedience to your holiness and wish you a prosperous and glorious pontificate."

The cardinal recalled that the bodies of the first pope and of St. Paul rest in the basilica, which fact, he said, was of good augury for the work of the new head of the Catholic church.

The pontiff was visibly touched, and answering in a trembling voice, warmly thanked the chapter for their well wishes. "Good wishes," he said, "are extremely precious."

The procession then reformed and proceeded to the door of the basilica through which Pius X. cast an almost terror-stricken glance, whispering to Dr. Lapponi, "Shall I ever be able to go through with it?"

The people in the basilica had meantime become very impatient, and when the gleaming cross which preceded the cortege was seen it was greeted with great applause.

Audience Was Uncontrollable.

On the appearance of the pontiff himself it seemed as though the people would seek to carry him on their arms, so great was their enthusiasm. Cries of "Pius, our pope, our father," and "Long live Pius X." were raised, notwithstanding the large placards posted all over the basilica saying: "Acclamations are forbidden." Leaflets to the same effect were distributed among the crowd. The cries continued until the pontiff was obliged to rise and bless the multitude, and at the same time he made a sign for more reverential behavior. Silence was obtained when the choir announced its entrance with the resounding notes of the "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus," which were accompanied by the sweet notes of the silver trumpets.

A quaint ceremony was then carried out. The master of the ceremonies knelt three times before the pontiff, each time lighting a bandful of hemp which surmounted a silver torch, and as the flame flashed and then died out he chanted: "Pater sancte, sic transit gloria mundi." (Holy father, thus passeth away the glory of the world.)

The procession then proceeded, the pope's face meanwhile illuminated by a smile. At the chapel of the sacrament there was another halt and his holiness left the sedia gestatoria and prayed at the altar. On re-entering the chair he was carried to the chapel of St. Gregory, where he officiated at a mass, being assisted by Cardinals Macchi, Di Pietro, Segna and Vannutelli. Then all the cardinals donned their silver copes and white mitres and the pope was borne to the throne amid acclamations and waving of handkerchiefs, fans and hats.

An Imposing Picture.

The scene presented on his mounting the throne formed a magnificent picture, to which no pen could do justice. The central figure was the venerable pontiff, seated on the throne. Two lines of cardinals clad in silver and scarlet reached to the high altar, with its burden of burning candles and sacred vessels, while around stood the papal guards, the pontifical court, monks and officials. The cathedral was illuminated with twinkling lights, while the marble walls and columns rendered the color scheme more vivid. Overhead was the most magnificent dome in the world, up to which floated the harmony of the music.

From the throne Pius X., surrounded by his suite, walked to the high altar, standing over the crypt of St. Peter, into which meanwhile Cardinal Macchi descended to pray. The altar was surmounted by a paldacchino supported by four historic bronze pillars taken from the Parthenon. The appearance of the popedom that elevated position called forth another burst of enthusiasm. The pope then blessed the altar and after saying the indulgentiam," the maniple, a symbol of the cord with which Christ was bound on his capture, was placed with great ceremony upon the pope's arm. At the same time prayers for the coronation were recited by Cardinals Vannutelli, Mocenni, Agliardi and Satolli. Returning from the crypt Cardinal Macchi placed upon the shoulders of the popa the pontifical pallium and attached it with three golden jeweled pins, saying:

Received Pontifical Pallium.

"Receive this sacred pallium as a symbol of the fulness of the pontifical office, in honor of Almighty God, the most glorious Virgin Mary, His mother, the blessed apostles, St. Peter and St. Paul, and the Holy Roman Catholic church."

Mass was then celebrated with great pomp and ceremony, the voice of the pope becoming gradually more firm and sonorous until it was even audible in the most distant corner of the immense church. Following this Cardinal Macchi performed the rite of incensing the pope, to whom he subsequently kissed three times on the cheeks and chest, as did Cardinals Segna and Vannutelli. Upon the pope's return to the throne, the cardinals offered their last obedience to the pontiff, kissing his hand and feet, and being embraced by him twice in turn. The bishops and archbishops kissed his foot and right knee, while the abbots kissed only his foot. The holy father then walked to the shrine of St. Peter for the culminating rites of the extremely fatiguing ceremony. The whole sacred college gathered about the pope, singing "Palestrinas Corona Aurea Super Caput Ejus," while the choir burst forth into song. Cardinal Macchi then recited the "Pater Noster" and offered the following prayer:

"Omnipotent and ever eternal God, dignitary of the clergy and author of sovereignty, grant Thy servant, Pius X., grace to fruitfully govern Thy church so that he who, by Thy clemency, becomes and is crowned as father of kings and rector of all the faithful, through Thy wise disposition may govern well."

"Amen," rang from all corners of the cathedral from the choir, the people, the clergy and the patricians.

Crown Placed by Macchi.

Cardinal Deacon Segna then raised the pontiff's mitre, and Senior Cardinal Macchi placed on the venerable white head the triple crown. At this moment the church was filled with the ringing of bells, the blowing of silver trumpets, the triumphant strains of the choir and the acclamations of the multitude which could no longer be repressed.

When comparative silence had been restored, Cardinal Macchi addressed the pope in Latin as follows:

"Receive the tiara, ornamented with three crowns, and remember that thou art the father of princes and kings, the rector of this world, the vicar on earth of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, who is the honor and glory of all centuries."

"Amen, amen," again burst forth from the concourse.

Pope Pius was quite overcome and had scarcely strength left to impart the apostolic benediction. Cardinals Macchi and Segna granted a plenary indulgence to all present, and the procession then reformed and left the basilica in the same order as it came.

The pope was visibly fatigued and his right hand shook as he raised it time after time to bestow his blessing.

When the ceremony was over all the exits to the basilica were opened and within less than an hour the vast cathedral was empty.

Cardinal Gibbons, after participating in the coronation ceremonies, started for the villa of the American college at Castle Gandolfo, accompanied by Mgr. Kennedy, the rector of the college, where he will spend a few days resting.

Strong as Pius X. is, physically, he supported the ordeal of his coronation today perhaps with less fortitude than did Leo XIII., when he was crowned, although the latter was merely a shadow of a man. But he possessed a will which nothing could break. This evening, when the pontiff received the duke of Parma, he said to him:

"Not counting the election, today was the most tremendous experience of my life. I must find a way to stop the noise in the church. It is an offense against religion."

It is regarded as almost marvelous, considering the tremendous crowd at St. Peter's today, that not a single untoward incident occurred and the perfect order is attributed to the good organization of the military and the police. Premier Zanardelli, although not well, remained in Rome purposely to personally direct the policy of the government. He left immediately after the coronation, saying "Rome and Italy have given proof to the world of their freedom of the church."

The officials of the vatican refused diplomatists, accredited to the quirinal, any facilities for being present at the coronation. Nevertheless, some of them were there as private individuals, through the courtesy of their colleagues of the French embassy to the vatican.

Besides Cardinal Gibbons there were present at the ceremony today Mgr. Kennedy and the entire American college party; the archbishop of Manilla, Mgr. O'Connell, rector of Washington university, and the Very Rev. Charles P. Grannan of the same institution; Father Wall and Father John E. Burke, both of New York; Father Fowler of Sioux City, Ia., and Father Thomas B. Donovan of Montgomery, Ala.

No place was specially reserved for the family of the pope, the only member of his family present being his nephew, Parolin, who is a parish priest.

Tonight all the churches and religious institutions and in addition, many private houses, are illuminated in honor of the occasion. The pontiff was so fatigued by the ceremony that he has postponed the meeting of the consistory, which was to have been held tomorrow.

IN THE TRACTION PARKS.

Good Music and Clever Performers Furnish Entertainment for Large Crowds.

After heavy rains, which seemed to doom the day's brightness, traction park visitors were treated to as fine a day as one might wish for, and the evening was fully as fine.

Southern park has the Pennsylvania State band, which played two fine programs. The Howards, a clever team of entertainers, did bright work, while Cooke and Oakes, a team of specialty artists who have been seen here before, were well received.

Kennywood park had very large crowds, many being attracted by the stories of grotesque make-ups of the attaches as a result of the anti-Sunday amusement crusades. But they were entertained by the Rocereto band, which gave two good concerts, and with the band was Mlle. Alice Dumont, quite a nice singer. Then there was Koster, the aerial acrobat, who is very good in his line, and several other extra features.

The encampment of the Knights of Pythias closed yesterday at Calhoun park and the Knights of Pythias band gave both concerts. Miss Hattie North, comedienne, proved herself a bright entertainer and Cobbett and Lloyd, singing comedians, furnished lots of fun.

Oakwood had the Commonwealth Concert band, yesterday being its first appearance at the parks this season. The organization acquitted itself satisfactorily. Feliado, known as "the human musical instrument," was one of the special features, and he kept many people guessing whether he didn't have someone back of the stage imitating the different instruments, while he merely moved his mouth, so expert is he. He has mastered nearly every instrument used in an orchestra or band. Smith and Gorman, a team of funmakers, came in for their share of hearty applause.

VICTIM OF A WOMAN.

After a Quarrel, She Tells the Police of a Robbery in New York State.

Antonio Devello, an Italian, was arrested yesterday in a restaurant in Larimer avenue, charged with being a suspicious person.

It is alleged that when at Unionville, N. Y., about two months ago, Devello, with the aid of a Mrs. Annie Teddio, robbed M. R. Salottino, a fellow countryman, of $547. Devello disappeared but the woman was arrested. No evidence could be found against her and she was released, coming to Pittsburgh, where she joined Devello.

The two quarreled the other day and the woman informed the police of the circumstances, which resulted in the arrest. Mrs. Teddio was held as a witness. Devello was living in Larimer avenue.

RAIDS IN ALLEGHENY.

Two Houses Visited and the Proprietors and a Number of Visitors Captured.

Allegheny police yesterday morning raided two alleged disorderly houses, one kept by Annie Cochran at No. 1117 Miller street, and the other on Preble avenue, of which G. A. Barker, who says he lives on Magee street, Pittsburgh, appeared to be in charge. Beer and whisky were being sold at both places.

Detective John King, Special Officer Benjamin Ehrhardt and Officer John Hill made both raids, and captured both proprietors, nine visitors at the Miller street house, and 11 visitors at the Preble avenue house.

The woman put up $105 for her appearance this morning, and Barker $25 for his appearance. The visitors each left $10 forfeits.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—In a head-and-head finish the Microbes stalled off the rush of the Pirates this afternoon and won the game, 4 to 3, thus out of the last seven games on the home grounds the Chicagoans have won six, Pittsburgh's only victory being in the contest Saturday.

The more the Pirates and the Microbes mingle with each other the better their games are. Today's was one of the very best which the two teams have ever played. Pittsburgh was not beaten until the last man was called out, and if Tinker had dropped the fly, which retired the third man in the ninth inning, the score would have been tied, for Wagner was rushing from second, which he had reached by daring base running and had already passed third before the ball was caught.

Jack Taylor twirled for the locals, and Kennedy essayed the same task for Pittsburg. At the end of the fourth, Clarke concluded that he was being hit too freely, so he took him out and put Vail in his place. There was a huge crowd out, the stands being small to hold every body who wanted to watch the game. Such a crowd is unusual so late in the season at Chicago, but if the two teams could play all of this week, a goodly sized throng would be out every day.

The first scoring was done by the Microbes, when Hurley began the second inning with a double. After a couple of outs, Taylor singled and tallied him. A base on balls to Slagle and a single by Casey promised to give another run, but Taylor was caught at the plate by Sebring's good throw. In the third inning the locals got another run. Chance singled and Jones sacrificed him to second. Williams struck out, but Hurley was there with a safe drive and Chance counted.

Pittsburgh did not do a thing in the running line until the fifth, with one gone Beaumont singled and Clarke doubled. Beaumont getting in on Sebring's put out. In the sixth Wagner made a three-bagger, but after two were out, and he had to stay at third. At the beginning of the eighth everything seemed to be over for Chicago got a couple of runs. Williams began batting with a man on third. Hurley went out, but King poked out another safe one, which scored Williams. Tinker was an out, but Taylor slammed a drive down into the right garden and King scored.

The game seemed to be safe enough until Kruger, who was sent up to bat for Vail in the ninth, placed a nasty one past Casey for two bags, after two strikes had been called on him. Beaumont flied to left, but Clarke sent one to the very same spot that Kruger had marked out, and the little German was home. Clarke was scored on a single by Wagner, who afterwards made a most daring steal of second. Bransfield could not help him, however, being due to do nothing better than a little fly to Tinker, which the short stop refused to drop. Score:

NO AMERICAN LEAGUE GAME AT DETROIT

DETROIT, Aug. 9.—Sunday baseball is not permitted in Detroit this season and today's Detroit-Cleveland American league game was therefore postponed, and will probably be played on a week day later in the season.

Reliance Leaves for Bristol.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—The cup defender Reliance left for Bristol this afternoon at 5:30 in tow of her tender, the Sunbeam, to have mainsail recut and bent on again. The weather was unfit for a spin today or the Reliance and the Constitution would have had another tuning up trial. As it was the man on the new boat unbent the mainsail, which has been in use the last three days and which will be recut and stored away below decks on the Sunbeam.

Rival Steel Teams Meet.

NEW CASTLE, PA., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—The Youngstown team of the United States Steel Corporation will play the local steel team here tomorrow. A three-cornered rivalry exists between the Youngstown, Sharon and New Castle teams of the steel company.

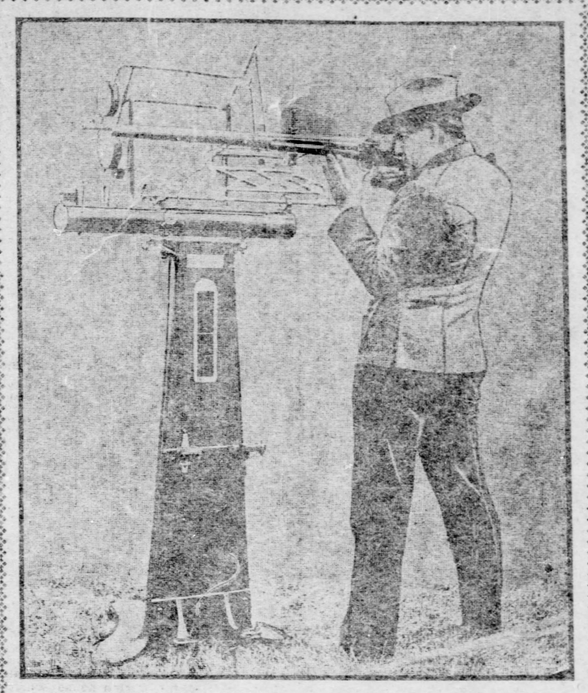
Rate, ten dollars for round trip in coaches, or twelve dollars in parlor and sleeping cars, when accompanied by usual Pullman tickets. Evening trains leave at 4:50 and 9 o'clock, with coaches and sleeping cars to Philadelphia, and at 10 p. m. with sleeping cars through to Atlantic City without change.



The Curious Aiming Machine Used by the Americans at Bisley.

DENIES UNAUTHORIZED RIFLES ARE EMPLOYED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—(Special.)—Concerning the charge that members of the American rifle team won the Palma trophy at the international contest in England on July 11 through the use of an unauthorized rifle, Maj. James Bell, inspector of rifle practice of the District of Columbia National guard, said tonight:

"I cannot say whether the American team used the regulation Krag-Jorgensen gun or a gun equipped with a special Pope barrel. Members of the team took both guns. I do know, however, that the rifles used by the English team were not manufactured in English arsenals. If the American team violated the regulations governing the contest, so did the British team. The controversy is one stirred up outside the membership of the opposing teams and I believe the statement made by members of the American team that the rifles used in the shoot were adopted by mutual agreement."

ELECTRICS SEEK HONOR AMONG THE AMATEURS

Has Good Claim for Championship of Pittsburgh—Fielding and Batting Averages.

The Electric club of Wilkinsburg, which has been showing such good form this season, is after the amateur championship of Pittsburgh. The team is composed of players around Wilkinsburg, and has been playing the strongest clubs in this vicinity, and winning. The Electrics do not pick out easy marks and then play for the sake of counting a victory only, but they want good, hard contests, which they have been getting. Saturday's victory over the strong Windsor bunch was the Electric's twelfth win this season. The averages of the players up to Saturday's game follow:

PITTSBURGH BOYS BEAT WOODLAND BEACH TEAM

Charlie Duffy Captains Nine That Wins from Big Summer Aggregation.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ASHTABULA HARBOR, O., Aug. 9.—A game of baseball was played at Woodland Beach park yesterday between teams composed of Pittsburgh boys and the park club. The Reserves, which is captained by Charlie Duffy, who played first base on the Pittsburgh College team last spring, beat the Woodland Beach team, 6 to 5, in an exciting contest. Score:

FINISHED A DOG FIGHT IN THE POLICE COURT

Wily Bulldog Watches His Opportunity and Wins Money for His Master in the August Presence of the Magistrate.

The money that William Fleming and Robert Adams had bet on the prowess of their respective bulldogs changed hands yesterday after a hearing before Attorney James F. Kane, police magistrate. The dog fight was pulled off with difficulty, for the police had interfered and it was only under the magistrate's protection that the last decisive round was fought in the court room at the Forty-third street police station.

Fleming and Adams had boasted of the ability of their dogs and yesterday they took the animals up on Garfield hill to decide the argument. Police Lieutenant Robinson got wind of the proposed fight and caught the two dogs hard at it, no decision having been reached. He took the pets and their masters to the police station. The dogs were locked up, each in his master's cell, and when the hearing began they were brought out as evidence. Wagonman Frank Wagner led one dog and Janitor Henry Conway the other. The court room was crowded and Attorney Kane sat in the magistrate's chair.

The dogs eyed each other, first ferociously and then warily, growled and snarled and reared and plunged to escape from the hands that restrained them. Suddenly the dog held by Conway broke loose and sprang at the animal in Wagner's charge, and in a second the dogs were at each other. Conway was jerked on his face by the force of his dog's spring, and Wagner was thrown off his feet and landed heavily against the magistrate's desk. The lawyer-magistrate himself jumped behind his chair and hurriedly read the law to the two fighting witnesses. The crowded court room would have been emptied had those gathered there not blocked the exit in trying to escape. In the meantime the dogs bit and growled and tossed and turned and twisted between the legs of the other witnesses. Finally the dog in charge of Wagner tried to tuck his tail between his legs and sneak away, but finding the caudal appendage too short to display that traditional signal of defeat, he bolted into the cellroom, leaving the other dog the master of the field and of the court.

Proud of the victory, the remaining animal strutted up to his master and was patted and petted. The two men were held under bail for another hearing under less exciting circumstances today, but the dogs were locked up in separate cells. The animal that was beaten was for sale cheap.

DRAKE TO CHANGE RACING POLICY

Intends to Abandon Practice of Breeding and Campaigning at Same Time.

NOT TO BUY UNTRAINED COLT

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Growing out of the rumor that John A. Drake would buy the celebrated Belle Mead farm in Tennessee, has come a denial from Drake and with it the announcement that he will change his racing policy, so far as never again to buy an untried colt. Drake is firmly convinced that it is a bad policy for a man to attempt to breed thoroughbreds and to race them at the same time. He regards the two as separate businesses one being likely to interfere with the other. He believes that more than one failure of a racing stable has been the result of its owner attempting to breed his own horses.

According to the rumor which was current at the Saratoga track yesterday, Drake had made an offer for the Belle Mead farm which might be accepted. When he was seen at the United States hotel late Saturday evening, Mr. Drake gave strongest kind of a denial to the report, saying:

"I have never had any thought of buying the farm and I will not be a bidder for it. Please do not misunderstand me. I regard the property as of great value, and I would like to own it. If I were in the breeding business I would certainly offer a good price for it. But I am not a breeder of thoroughbreds, and it is not my intention to embark in the business. If I attempted to breed race horses you can be sure I would quit the track as an owner."

SPORTS SURPRISED WHEN FITZ QUIT JEFFRIES

Cornishman Denies They Quarreled, Saying the Champion Did Not Want to Box.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9.—There is no disguising the fact, so far, at least, as San Francisco is concerned, that intense interest is being taken in the Jeffries-Corbett fight. One of the most fruitful themes in local sporting circles today was the sudden return of Fitz. Local sports had come to look upon Fitzsimmons as the "Tennessee's Pardner" of the Jeffries outfit, and much surprise was expressed at the Cornishman leaving the champion at what is considered the most critical time of the training spell.

A report was started that Jeffries and Fitz had quarreled and this was advanced as the cause of the Cornishman quitting the camp a week before the date of the fight. Fitz denied this. "Jeffries said he would not do any more boxing, that is why I left," said Fitz.

It was elicited that the pair had exercised together but little since the advent of Fitz. The sum total of their bouts was nine rounds, they having boxed two rounds on three separate occasions and three rounds at another time. The only solution of the champion's strange behavior in this particular connection is that he is said to have been whimsical in regard to his routine work ever since he went into camp. It appears to have been Billy Delaney's aim to divert Jeffs mind from all the negotiation stuff that pugilists apply themselves to, and Delaney no doubt is responsible for the sparring with Fitz being eliminated from the program. Betting on the championship has begun, a few hundred dollars being placed today at odds of 2 to 1, with Jeff favorite.

WEAKNESS OF MARKET NOT CAUSED BY CLIQUE

However, Wall Street Believes the Price of Peace Is the Delivery of Some Big Property to the Enemy.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, Aug. 9.

There is a theory prevalent in Wall street that a famous party of marksmen, as celebrated for accuracy in their way, as was ever David Crocket, are out "gunning" at the present time. Not every one subscribes to this idea, some attributing the disorder of the security market to the workings of natural economic laws, but the rank and file of Wall street have been fed on fictions for so long that it is possibly not strange that a very considerable proportion of apparently reasonable human beings are convinced that the price at which Wall street can purchase peace is the delivery of control of some great property to the expeditionary forces.

As a matter of fact, there is very little, if any ground for the prevailing Wall street notion that one large party of operators and capitalists are hunting the scalps of others. That there have been what, at a time such as the present, representatives of a party, which was out of harmony with the crazy speculative movements of the not remote past, who conserved their capital, sold their stocks at high prices and did not strain their credit, are in a better position to stand a test than those who plunged into every adventure, loaded up with the undigested and indigestible things and seriously injured their credit. Men with money last longer than men with stocks, which are not owned, but carried upon margins.

It would not be strange if, as a result of the severe stock declines, the control of some property should pass. This, however, would be more the result of the improvidence and reckless overtrading of persons forced to sell, than the [illegible] those who were prudent and have the means available to purchase. It would be but an incident of a condition in which men's necessities were great, forcing them to part with what they own and what is marketable at heavy sacrifice, to protect what they only partly own, or has become unavailable as a basis of obtaining cash or credit.

The interests of all capitalists in Wall street at the present are identical, and there is mighty little room left to choose between the desirability of one group's promotion schemes or those of another. All alike have gone down, like plumets, and all alike are influenced by the same governing influences—the utter and complete absence of confidence on the part of a considerable portion of the public in Wall street promoters and promotion methods.

So good stocks suffer alike with poor ones, for the sellers are many and the buyers for cash, few. Men once burned or bitten are twice shy. It must be confessed that there has been ample and sufficient cause to render the public timid. Wall street in the past made its money very easily, but it takes a long time, hard work and rigid economy for the ordinary run of merchants, manufacturers, traders and professional men to accumulate money.

If accumulations of years have been swept away in a trice, through some lucky, fortunate speculation, or sunk in [illegible] vestment in one of the scandalous corporation collapses which has graced the period, it is a long time before the victim or his friends forget the loss or repair the injury. Such ones, and they can be reckoned thousands, become suspicious of stocks, fearing to buy the bear when cheap, as a result of [illegible] ter experience.

WHY LONDON AFRAID OF A STREET SLUMP

System of Financing by Banks Is Rendering Some Positions Insecure.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

Copyright, 1903, by New York Herald Co.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—American rails, as usual, have been the barometer of Capel court, and the rally that was made in Wall street in the latter part of the week resulted in a more cheerful view being taken here. All the authorities, however, preach caution. It is considered even the recent general weakness of the markets here has to be attributed chiefly to nervousness with regard to possible developments in New York.

While it is generally agreed that for a long time past there has been no big boom open in American rails in behalf of the operator, the point is made that large lines of Americans are carried on this side, not in the good fashioned style by which their volume could be measured by dealers, but pawned with banks. The system of financing speculation is one which some banks, in their eagerness for profitable accounts, have been too ready to encourage, and it is predicted that if the so-called "Yankee panic" go on much longer these bankers are likely enough to pay for their imprudence. This is the reason given to show why the American disturbance, which ought to be a source merely of academic interest to Londoners, causes so much anxiety.

One thing for which the stock exchange is very thankful is the cessation of rumors of war between Japan and Russia. These sensational reports were a disturbing factor which threatened serious danger. Some of the newspaper agencies still harp on the stringent, but in Capel court the subject has barely been mentioned this last week. The 5 per cent Japanese bonds are back again in the neighborhood of par, but have not yet quite regained all they lost during the period when the war rumor mongers were rampant.

It is difficult to estimate how much effect Mr. Chamberlain's proposals are having upon the markets. Beyond doubt the trading classes are disinclined to employ their money in the stock market so long as the fixed policy of the country is in the air, where Mr. Chamberlain has placed it.

ANNIE HOOPER PROVED TO BE THE BETTER MAN

Annie Hooper and her husband, John Hooper of Arbuckles alley, had a fight Saturday, and the woman came out best. Both were locked up. At the hearing yesterday morning it was shown the woman was the aggressor, and she was fined $5 and costs. The man was discharged, his appearance showing he had been punished enough.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF MARKET PRICES

New Timoth Hay Now Quoted. Ban Prices Firmer—Few Grocery Changes.

So little old timothy hay is arriving now that quotions which go out this week are for new, whichevers the bulk of all transactions. Where old hay is offered it commands a higher figure than the new, but there is not much for sale. Quotions are steady, and there is good demand, with receipts fair, while not any too heavy. The embargo which was in force on the Pennsylvania lines was lifted several days ago, but has not made much difference in receipts here thus far, and there does not seem to be a great deal of hay rolling. Straw is lower than was a week ago, the arrival of new having greased supplies.

Oats are firm and new stock is coming in which is offered at 36 to 38 cents, according to grade. The market here for oats is low, compared with Stern prices. Corn has held its own steadily and millfeed is unchanged except for a flat bran situation, which has resulted in big stocks.

There have been few changes in staple groceries during past week, the most important being in sugar, which has gone forward 10 cents a bb from the lowest point of last Monday. Cash deals are in limited supply, and flour is firmly held. Sugar is unchanged in the local market, and the only change made in the list is an advance of several refiners who had been allowing necessary discounts to them. Demand good, some jobbers reporting sales as above the average, while others report trade moderate, although better than last month. Coffee remains about former quotations. Cereal foods hold their own, and are ready. Beans sell at the range governing a market a week ago. Canned goods are changed, with corn scarce and very str tomatoes are moving slow, as thoughkers talk of more strength in the situ Dried and evaporated fruits are unc ed

Potato situation is the same as that of a ago, with home stock coming in quite ly, and of excellent quality. Barrel onions e declined. Cabbage is more plentiful and ler than it was last Monday. Lemons have taken quite a drop, with reduced demand. Egg plant is lower. String beans have just about held their own, the market continuing firm, with supplies light. Peas are scarce and higher. Tomatoes are abundant, and home stock is much lower in price. Corn is firmer than it was at the opening of the week.

Cantaloupes and Watermelons are selling at about the same quotations as at the opening of the week, with demand active and supplies liberal. Apples are coming in freely, but there is steady call for them and quotations are firm. Peaches have been in short supply, but eased off a little toward the close of the week, when prices were not quite so strong as at the opening. Blackberries are unchanged, while huckleberries are slightly higher. A few raspberries found their way into the market during the week, but only a stray shipment, their season being past. Plums and pears are now beginning to come forward in better quantity, but the market is steady.

Oranges hold steady, while lemons are fairly firm, though not quite so stiff in price as a week ago. California peaches are here in great abundance at comparatively low prices. California plums are firmer, while pears are easier.

While there was a slight decline in spring chickens at the opening of the week there was no break in the market, and conditions have remained firm, although there is possibility of lower prices this week if receipts continue to increase. Other poultry is unchanged.

Butter did not change in price last Monday, and cheese continues at former quotations, with the market a trifle easier. Eggs are unchanged but more firmly held.

THE OIL FIELDS REVIEWED.

Lower southwest operators passed an uneventful week in the fields under development, notwithstanding the usual activity prevailed in every section where the drill is most active in developing the older fields or searching for new pools. Of the latter class of work there is a slight falling off on account of the many fruitless efforts that have been made in the past few months.

The chances for finding small pools have not been entirely eliminated from the possibilities in the lower southwest, but the prospects have been growing smaller each succeeding month. The advance in the market has increased the demand to a point never before experienced in the history of the industry, and at the same time developed territory with a settled production has increased in value to a point never before realized since speculation was the chief feature.

With a continued consumption of the oil demanded as the Pennsylvania grade, there is little to fear from the fields producing the inferior quality in the far west and southwest. As to the future of Kentucky and Tennessee there is more to be learned. Explorations have been conducted in these two states on an extensive scale, and as yet the results have been far from satisfactory to more than a very small percentage of those who have invested.

Kentucky, no doubt, will furnish many small pools, much of it an inferior grade of oil, but if the state possess the ability to stop the drain on stocks in the eastern fields it will have to show better results than have been attained up to this time.

The new discovery made by the Reserve Gas Company in Lewis county, W. Va., two miles west of Weston, is attracting some attention for the reason that it is isolated from any previous production. The oil was encountered in the fourth sand and is very dark. Without any disposition to disparage the importance of the new strike, the color and the formation are both common to Lewis county. The Gantz, Gordon and fifth sands have been the prolific producing formations of this country.

Some six miles west of the new strike a small salt sand pool was developed some years ago. To the southwest 12 or 14 miles in the once sensational Sand Fork, Gordon and Fifth Sand pool, and then follows the Gentz sand pool on Fink creek.

During the week the Reserve Gas Company put its fourth well on the Snyder Bros'. farm to pumping and it is producing about 50 barrels a day. Despite the fact that the oil is off color, it is of a good quality and commands the highest price paid for the better grades. Under these conditions those holding leases in that vicinity are not greatly concerned as to the quality so long as there remains a possibility of securing a sufficient quantity to warrant the development of the territory.

In Wetzel and Harrison counties operators are very busy in the Gordon sand districts. These two counties are still the greatest source of new production, even though the average size of the wells is smaller than in the earlier days of developments. Development work to the northeast and west of the Fink Grove extension is making satisfactory progress and within another two weeks more will be known of these sections. Those engaged in developing the territory are very sanguine that large producers will be found and each is anxious to tap the sand before his neighbor.

In the shallow sand districts the Hudson Oil Company secured the best producer of the week when it drilled in its well No. 22 on the Harkness tract, north of Cairo, Ritchie county. The well started at a 200-barrel a day gait, but declined rapidly and had to be stimulated with a shot before it got down the line. The daily production above the 100-barrel a day mark.

In the other shallow sand districts the wells completed were nearly all small producers and not a big bargain of oil. On Big Run, north of Cairo, the Indiana and West Virginia Oil Company secured an unusually good salt sand well on a part of the Harkness tract. It started at 150 barrels a day and at the close of the week was still making 40 barrels a day. It looks as though there may be more salt sand producers found in this locality.

The only discovery of any importance on the Ohio side during the past seven days was the Southern Oil Company's test on the Yoho Bros' farm, located 400 feet northeast of the same company's good producer on the Sylvester Yoho farm, drilled in a year ago. It was thought at the time the last named well was drilled in that a new Keener pool had been discovered to the northwest of Woodsfield. The new strike is good for about 15 barrels a day and lends some encouragement to the belief that a small pool will be developed in the near future.

South of Burgettstown, Washington county, Pa., is the only locality in the local fields that is attracting any attention. The Logan Heppler shot his new well on the Russell farm and increased its production to 65 barrels a day.

POLICEMAN'S CASE GOES TO POLICE BOARD

Officer Peter O'Malley, who was arrested on the South Side Saturday night for drunkenness and disorderly conduct while on duty, was not sentenced yesterday, but his case will be presented to the police board by Inspector P. F. Kelly. Lewis Bobinger, the man whom O'Malley was taking to the station house when he himself fell to the ground, was discharged.

FATHER E. A. BUSH RELEASED FROM HIS OFFICE

Prominent Priest Is No Longer Vicar General of Pittsburgh Diocese.

ILL-HEALTH WAS THE CAUSE

Cardinal Gotti and Bishop Phelan Sign the Official Document Releasing Priest from All Church Duties on a Pension. He Is Now in Naples.

Word reached here yesterday morning from Rome that Father E. A. Bush, former rector of St. Peter's Roman Catholic church, Allegheny, and vicar general of the Pittsburgh diocese, has received official notification of his release from the duties of the latter office. Father Bush is in Naples, where he went last February in search of health. His condition became worse and he asked for his release from the vicar generalship.

Father Bush now goes on a pension, this being specified in his application for a release. He is also granted the privilege of remaining abroad and is relieved of all church duties. The release was granted through Cardinal Gotti, head of the propaganda fidi. Father Bush will now be known as the Rev. E. A. Bush, dropping the titles "very" and "v. g." with his release from the vicar generalship.

When Father Bush went abroad he had no intention of asking his release, but continued ill health caused him to make the application on June 5. The release was sent here to Bishop Phelan for his approval and signature. This was done and it was returned to Cardinal Gotti, who in turn placed his signature on the document releasing Father Bush from his duties. The appointive power for his successor lies in the hands of Bishop Phelan, who as yet has not signified whom he will appoint.

Father Bush was born in Canada 64 years ago, and came to this country and entered the college of St. Louis at Bardstown, Ky., when a young man. After taking his primary course at this institution, he matriculated at the seminary of St. Michael's at Summit, near Cresson, which was afterward moved to the South Side and still later to Hazelwood.

After graduation and ordination Father Bush was appointed to a professorship in St. Francis seminary at Loretto, and was later made rector of the church at that place, serving for about 20 years. Afterward he was made rector of St. John's, now the cathedral of the new diocese at Altoona, where he served until called to the rectorship of St. Peter's, six years ago. Soon after taking charge of this church he was appointed vicar general by Bishop Phelan. When he left for Rome in February he resigned the rectorship and his successor was appointed.

THE SACRED AND THE VAUDEVILLE

The Rev. Thomas Clayton Points Out Two Ways of Observing the Sabbath.

OUGHT NOT RESORT TO LAW

Clergyman Decides Use of Force in Compelling Proper Sunday Observance Should Appeal to Conscience and Judgment.

The recent attempts to enforce the blue laws in Wilkinsburg and the efforts of clergymen of McKeesport and Homestead to close Kennywood park on Sunday, called forth a sermon on these subjects by the Rev. Thomas Clayton, pastor of the First Congregational church, Allegheny. Yesterday morning he preached on "The Sacred vs. Vaudeville Sunday." His text was taken from Exodus xx:8, "Remember the Sabbath Day to Keep it Holy." Mr. Clayton said, in part:

If flaming placards on street cars and opinions expressed by many people are to be depended upon the Greater Pittsburgh Sunday is being given over more and more to vaudeville shows and public dissipation, and the title of this discourse is justified. The "sacred" quality of our park entertainments on Sunday is disappearing like a wandering comet. The purpose of these Sunday shows is not to please the public, but to make money. Nothing sacred or valuable is spared where dividends are involved.

Some storekeepers are equally mercenary and are willing to encourage recklessness, if not dissipation, among our young people for the sake of the nickles and dimes. No wonder the religious scruples of our church people are aroused. The only pity is that so many insist on wasting time and energy in trying to enforce law, instead of endeavoring to tone up public sentiment in favor of a better Sunday.

Law enforcement has always been abandoned as futile, because the enemies of the Sabbath are more persistent and the American people dislike the policy of force. Our church people need to set the example by refusing to patronize these things. The clergymen need to speak out more boldly and unanimously against Sabbath abuses. Christian citizens need to unite in a great and lasting protest against them. The church can and ought to exert a mighty influence on society.

When it is absolutely necessary the law may be appealed to, but the officers must be supported throughout and be assured of ample protection when law-breakers attempt to punish them through political manipulation. Many officers of the law would be more faithful if the Christian citizens would stand by them. The people need a quiet, restful and religious Sabbath. So do street car men, vaudeville performers, soda fountain attendants and even the brass bands are entitled to it.

If we need gaiety, give the people a half holiday on Saturday and get it over before Sunday begins. We fearlessly charge that these things are a direct attack upon the public morals, inasmuch as they entice people away from religious culture, which is necessary to the maintenance of moral sentiment. However, we do not believe the sacred Sunday can be preserved by fanatic appeals to the law, but a calm and earnest pleading with the judgment and conscience of the people. In short, the appeal must not be made to the sentiment of fear, but to the sense of right and wrong.

WAGE BOARD SYSTEM WOULD SAVE MONEY

Rev. Thurgood Says Victorian Idea Would Be Useful in in Pittsburgh.

"How One Wage Question Can Be Settled" was the topic of a sermon preached by the Rev. C. L. Thurgood, in the Central Christian church last night. His text was "The Wages of Sin Is Death." Mr. Thurgood passed in review the Victorian (Australia) wage board system, saying in part:

In this system it is provided that special boards may be appointed to fix wages and piece work rates for persons employed, either inside or outside factories, on a resolution being passed by either house of parliament declaring it expedient to appoint such a board. The boards are to consist of not less than four, nor more than 10 members, and half the number are to be representatives of the employers in the trade for which the board is constituted, and the other half to be the representatives of the employes.

If a board is to be appointed and either side refuse or neglect to elect representatives, the governor-in-council may appoint them instead. A chairman is to be appointed by the elected members, or, failing them, by the governor-in-council. A board may fix either wage rates or piece work rates or both, and must also fix the hours for which the rate of wage is fixed and the rate of pay for overtime. This system is now being operated with great success, and if introduced here would be the means of saving considerable time and money.

CHEMICALS USED TO ILLUSTRATE SERMON ON THE SOUL'S SALVATION

The Rev. Henry F. Lutz, pastor of the Duquesne Christian church, last evening conducted the first of a series of twilight lawn services near the church building in Duquesne, and by the use of chemicals illustrated his sermon in an unusual manner. The text was taken from John I, 9: "The blood of Jesus Christ, His Son, cleanses us from all sins."

Mr. Lutz, after outlining his sermon, produced four large bottles, two of which contained pure water and nitrate of silver, used to represent the soul in a state of innocence; the third bottle contained lime water, which, mixed with the water and nitrate of silver, changed them to a dark brown, representing sin. The fourth bottle contained ammonia, which the speaker mixed with the brown liquid and transformed it to its original color, showing how the grace of God changed the soul of the sinner.

The bottle of dark liquid was covered with a silk cloth, to show that one clothing made no change in the sinner; flowers were placed over it to illustrate that surroundings had no effect on sin; many other illustrations were made with the bottle, and, finally, it was broken and the contents scattered on the lawn, showing that even death made no change with a sinful soul. A large quantity of the ammonia was then placed in the remaining bottle of dark liquid and it was at once restored to its original whiteness, illustrating how, by sincere repentance, the soul could be restored to grace.

GENERAL RESUMPTION TAKES PLACE TODAY

Hoisting Engineers Are to Receive $4 for an Eight-Hour Day.

All the men employed by the Builders' Exchage league members are to return to work this morning, according to the arrangements made Saturday night. The dispute between the hoisting engineers, which is to be placed in the hands of a board of arbitration, providing committees of both bodies fail to reach a settlement, is to render a decision by Saturday night, or, as the agreement made on Saturday reads, within six working days.

What contentions are to be settled could not be learned fully, as both sides have agreed to keep that matter from the public. However, it is known that the league has agreed to give the hoisting engineers $4 a day, eight hours to constitute a day's work, but the engineers are to raise steam by 8 o'clock in the morning, gratis. This means that the arbitrators are not to consider the wage scale nor the hours, but such other contentions as are in dispute.

Among the points to be settled is in regard to the number of holidays to be granted, and also as to when the scale will be in force. The league desires that the scale expire the last of the year, while the engineers want it to remain in force until next June.

NEW THEME FOR AN OLD PARABLE

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman Delivers an Interesting Discourse on Prodigal Son.

HOW IT DIFFERS FROM OTHERS

A. M. Schoyer of Pittsburgh Gave a Refreshing Talk to the Chautauqua Classes Yesterday—Anniversary Services Held.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 9.—The parable of the prodigal son has been interpreted from so many points of view that there would hardly seem to be left opportunity for a new one. But Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman found a new one in his sermon this morning. He took for his text that passage in Luke which tells how the Pharisees expressed their scorn of Jesus by the words: "This man receiveth sinners and eateth with them."

Dr. Chapman says that the answer of Jesus is embraced in the three parables of the lost piro of money, the lost sheep and the improperly so-called parable of the prodigal son. The central idea of the three parables illustrates the reason why Christ "received sinners," that they might be rescued and saved, the difference being that in the cases of the lost money and the lost sheep, the owner immediately set about hunting for that which was lost. But in the case of the lost son it would have been of no avail to go after him until he had had enough of the world of sin and was ready voluntarily to return.

At a meeting of young folks this afternoon for ethical study, a prominent Pennsylvania railroad official demonstrated a refreshing breath of character and attainments. A. M. Schoyer, general superintendent of lines west, has a wide reputation in Western Pennsylvania as a Sunday school worker, and has developed a talent for story-telling as a means of instruction for young people which is original and strikingly effective. His address to the clubs this afternoon in the form of three stories evoked a round of applause. Sabbath though it was.

The yesper service of the Chautauqua literary and scientific circle was of the anniversary character which has marked all the exercises of the circle the past week. Twenty-five years ago the grove where stands the present hall of philosophy was dedicated to its sentimental use in connection with the circle. Here are held all the unique ceremonials connected with the grading exercises. Dr. Jesse Hurlbut, one of the organizers of the first Chautauqua circle, in his address today told of the dedication of the grove and how the name selected—St. Paul's grove—was chosen because the Apostle Paul, representing the two great elements of a fervent heart and an equipped, thoughtful mind, worthily stands as the exemplar of Chautauqua's aim.

ALLEGHENY MINISTER CALLED TO BALTIMORE

The Rev. W. E. Schramm, D. D., pastor of St. Paul's English Lutheran church, Allegheny, announced from his pulpit yesterday that he has received a unanimous call to the pastorate of St. Peter's English Lutheran church, Baltimore. The pastorate is one of the largest in Maryland, and the pulpit is now vacant, owing to the recent resignation of the Rev. E. L. S. Tressel, who served the congregation for 30 years, and who just retired from the ministry. Dr. Schramm has been pastor of the Allegheny church for eight years, and is one of the strongest ministers of the denomination in this vicinity. He has not yet decided as to whether or not he will accept the call.

DR. E. MONA JONES GOES ON A BRIEF VACATION

The Rev. E. Mona Jones, pastor of the Chatham Street Baptist church, preached his last sermons in that church yesterday morning and evening until the first Sunday in September. Mr. Jones leaves on a vacation today. While he is away the church building will be given a thorough overhauling inside and outside, and many attractice additions in furniture will be made. No arrangements have yet been made as to who shall fill the pulpit while Mr. Jones is out of the city.

DEDICATED NEW BIBLE FOR USE IN THE PULPIT

A new pulpit Bible of the Austro-Hungarian congregation Poalezedeck was dedicated yesterday afternoon at the church building, Crawford and Rose streets. Rabbi M. Weinberger of New York, who delivered two lectures before the congregation on Saturday, delivered a lecture at the services yesterday afternoon. His topic was "The Patriotism of Judaism." Rabbi Weinberger is a well-known clergyman, and his presence here attracted a large crowd to the church.
